The City of Rochester
A Great University
Education by Pictures
Reflectors for Russia

By Arthur Brisbane

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 17 —This city, by voluntary action of its principal employers, has initiated a plan of unemployment insurance that should spread. Rochester, a great manufacturing city, one of the ablest in the country, has fought unemployment with part time work, and especially by refraining from wage cutting. One man, well-paid, can help others.

Of the city's institutions, the University of Rochester, admirably developed under Dean Weld, is the most important. And the most interesting feature of the university is its library, admirably planned.

Absolutely fireproof, with a huge tower built to contain 17 stories and room for 1,000,000 books, the library should be studied and imitated. Mr. Eastman, chief citizen of Rochester, has given $15,000,000 to the university and Mr. Rockefeller has given $3,000,000 to its medical school.

In Mr. Eastman's kodak factory, under the direction of Dr. Finnegan, is a new educational institution that may prove more important in future years than any school now on earth. It is a laboratory for the production of educational moving pictures. Physics and various other branches of science are made clear to young minds in these pictures that have gained the experimental stage, being regularly shown in hundreds of schools. All the public schools of Pittsburgh have them, proving that city's intelligence.

The greatest teaching genius could not in 10 hours convey to the mind what these pictures can convey in 15 minutes.

Mr. Eastman, one of the world's greatest manufacturers, has already dedicated his great fortune to public works, reserving only an income for life. All that he has done and is doing in future is organized to make instantaneous the work that is usually done by moving pictures.

As Russia testified, long ago, photography in itself is the greatest force for education. With motion and voice added, it is the shortest cut to knowledge ever invented (writing).

It would interest you to see gigantic machines as big as newspaper presses creating and winding up broad sheets of transparent film to display the famous and the unknown picture industry of the moment.

A few years ago, 12 of those machines had been installed Mr. Eastman showing them to one of his foreign representatives, said: "Those machines can supply the whole world with film for the next hundred years." Since that time Mr. Eastman has discarded the 12 machines as archaic and has installed others with 20 times their capacity. You never can tell how much the world will use of anything, if it is well advertised.

Important to America and its workers is the new Eastman research laboratory, with 250 rooms equipped for 250 scientists that will devote time and knowledge exclusively to development of new ideas and BETTER METHODS. Scientific research work, carried on by all great American industries, is the world's most important war. It is war for world's markets, and industrial scientists will win its battles with their brains.

Rochester's important institutions include the Bausch and Lomb Optical Co., most important in the world. You see clear white sand transformed into glass that enables human beings to read when they are old and brings planets and the stars closer for men to study.

Among other things you see something magnificent, a beautifully polished parabolic reflector mirror, five feet across. Made of finest glass, with silver back of the glass, and copper back of the silver. This powerful reflector is one of 150 ORDERED BY THE RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT.

With an arc light of 150 amperes, this reflector sends into space a beam of light possessing one billion, two hundred and fifty million candlepower.

Russia does not mean to be taken by surprise. These giant reflectors for coast defense and battleships are intended to "pick up" enemy airplanes for the information of Russian anti-aircraft gunners. With one billion, two hundred and fifty million candlepower airplanes could be found at any depth in the sky.

Recently, visiting the General Electric plant at Schenectady, the writer was shown the greatest hydraulic turbine ever built and was told, "That's for Russia." To me here a tremendous battery of reflecting mirrors also for Russia indicates that Russians are busy no matter what the unemployment and depression may be elsewhere.

MAYOR CURLEY OFF TO CHICAGO

Mayor Curley left Boston at 12:20 p. m. today for Chicago, where he will be a guest over the week-end holiday in the family of Miss Loretta Brammer, fiancee of the late James M. Curley, Jr.

The mayor's daughter, Mary, has been a guest since last Saturday of Miss Brammer, who was her classmate in Sacred Heart College in New York.

This morning the Mayor paid a flying visit to City Hall to sign letters and payrolls, then hastened to the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes in Jamaica Plain, where, at 10:30 his son, George Curley, 12, was confirmed by Bishop John B. Peterson.

Accompanying the mayor as far as Albany was his secretary, Cornelius A. Reardon, who went part way on the journey to aid in cleaning up some necessary detail work of the city. Reardon was to leave the train in Albany and return to Boston.

The mayor is expected back Tuesday.

"Those who remain," the official notice said, "do so at their own risk and must not expect American forces to be sent inland to their aid."

CARRIED OUT AT BLAZE IN STUDIO

Three youthful girl artists attired in pajamas of brilliant hue, were carried down ladders to safety by firemen this morning as fire swept the building in which their studio apartments are located at 13 T wharf.

The girls are Peggy Jennings, her sister Louise, and Sarah Carson, 19. They occupied an apartment on the third floor of the factory building. The first and second floors housed the offices of the Quincy storage warehouse.

The blaze, which, according to started from spontaneous combustion on the second floor, was discovered by a custodian, Joseph Kearney.

Kearney sounded an alarm and entered the building to arouse the sleeping girls.

When fire apparatus responded a ladder was run up to the window of the studio and Ladderman Ryan and Dorr assisted the three girls to the street.

The fire was extinguished after it had made slight inroads into the studio apartment. Damage was estimated at $5000.

Checking Up on King Alfonso

By Arthur ("Bugs") Baer

Let's see how Alfonso stands. After leaving Spain he now says he hasn't abdicated. Can fifty million Spaniards be wrong?

He's got about forty million dollars pasted away in storm-proof banks. That ain't hay.

They have been shooting at Al ever since he was three years old. At least in a republic they wait until you are old enough to shoot back.

The only disadvantage of not being King is that he will have to make his speeches shorter.

He can come to America and start a good monument and marble works with statues of himself.

Our undercover man in the blended factory told us about Alfonso's forty million. Al salted it away in European banks and said:

"There's one nest egg they will never scramble into a Spanish omelet."

So why waste the bitter tear over Alfonso when we can cry into our own soup?

We concede, he was a good King, as kings went, and we concede he went.

And his future? Well, it's kind of tough to spend the rest of your life counting your money and sorting your jewelry.

CROWDS SEE BIG REALTOR PLUNGE TO HIS DEATH

Frederick Holdsworth, 51, of 80 Sears rd., Brookline, prominent real estate broker and director of several companies, plunged five stories to his death today from his office in the Merchants' National Bank building, State and Devonshire sts.

As the police hurried to the pavement on Devonshire st., narrowly missing several pedestrians in a wave, Miss Edna Bowser, 26, of 66 Atherton rd., Brookline, and Spencer Hagen, chauffeur for Holdsworth, waited for him in an outer office.

They had accompanied Holdsworth in town from the Brooks Hospital, Brookline, where he had been a patient for two weeks, following a nervous breakdown.

LOCKED SELF IN

Holdsworth, according to the nurse and chauffeur, had gone into his private office and locked the door, after telling them that he had some important papers to look over.

The body struck in the street four or five feet from the curb, just after the last car in a line of traffic had passed out of Devonshire st., but the crashing of the body threw that thoroughfare into confusion and attracted hundreds of people to the scene.

Passersby picked up the crumpled form of the realtor and placed it in a public works department automobile driven by Daniel McLoughlin, city chauffeur, and carrying as a passenger Frank Pedoni, messenger in the office of Mayor Curley.

The city workers raced for Haymarket Relief Hospital but Holdsworth was pronounced dead on arrival.

WIDOW NEAR COLLAPSE

Mrs. Jessie M. Holdsworth, his widow, who, with two daughters and a son, survive, nearly collapsed on learning of his death. She declared that her husband had been depressed ever since the death of his real estate partner, Robert D. Farrington, in an automobile accident in Wayland last Nov. 1.

"Mr. Holdsworth," said the widow, "had been suffering from a nervous shock since that time. He arranged for Mr. Farrington's funeral and spent much time in comforting the family.

"Since that accident he had been ill and in December was on

King, Queen of Siam Reach Vancouver

Vancouver, B. C., April 17 (AP)—Traveling incognito and looking more like wealthy tourists than reigning sovereigns of one of the last absolute monarchies in the world, the King and Queen of Siam arrived today.

SPANISH EXILES HEROIZED BY CHEERING CROWDS IN PARIS

ALFONSO STILL HOPES TO WIN BACK CROWN

Government in Madrid Busy on Plans to Strengthen Republic

Barcelona, Spain, April 17 (AP)—All prisoners were released from jails here today by rioters who swept through the streets without interference. Police were disinclined to take action despite existence of martial law.

Paris, April 17 (AP)—Alfonso de Bourbon, deposed King of Spain, and Victoria, his English queen, today faced together in France an exile which Alfonso is confident will end in his recall to the throne.

In the meantime the royal family has to live quietly as private citizens.

To both Victoria and Alfonso, and the five of their six children who are here with them, the people of Paris extended a welcome more like that of conquering heroes than refugees.

Alfonso was visibly startled to see the huge crowd awaiting him as he stepped from his car. He doffed a green fedora and attempted to slip out a side door of the railway station to a waiting car, but found another cheering crowd awaiting him there.

CHEERED BY CROWDS.

At his hotel police had to make a way for him through the throng outside. Later on the insistent calls from the crowd, Alfonso appeared with Victoria on a balcony opening on their rooms. Both, struggling to master their emotions, smiled and bowed and withdrew. But the shouting continued and they had to appear again.

The acclaim of Alfonso and Victoria was mingled French and Spanish. The shouts were both "vive le roi!" and the Spanish, "viva el rey!" many of the French cheering him were of monarchist leanings, who see in Alfonso a descendant of their own dethroned royal house.

MAY GO TO ENGLAND

One o. Alfonso's first inquiries on reaching Paris, it was understood, was for the welfare of his third son, the 17-year-old Infante Don Juan, who was taken to Gibraltar from the naval academy at Cadiz shortly after proclamation of the Spanish republic.

Alfonso appeared greatly relieved on being told that arrangements had been made for Juan to sail on the Italian liner Roma today from Gibraltar for Naples, whence he may come to Paris.

No decision has been made as to where Alfonso will spend his exile, whether in Paris or in the family villa or in England, where, because his wife is an English princess, he probably would be received with the bosom of the British royal family. Alfonso is wealthy and may go where he chooses.

Back in Madrid the provisional government of President Niceto Alcala Zamora took steps today to bring Catalonia, sunny southern province where an independent republican government has been set up, under the Madrid authority.

The minister of justice, Fernando de los Rios; Marcelino Domingo, minister of instruction, and Nicolau Dolzen, minister of economy flew by plane to Barcelona to confer with Col. Francisco Macia, president of the Catalonian Republic.

Every effort will be made to keep the republic unified.

The people of Spain appeared today to have turned easily from the celebration of establishment of the republic to their usual jobs, and cities today assumed their normal aspect, except for banners and bunting of the Republican colors, which were to be seen everywhere.

FOR SEPARATE STATE

Only minor disorders occurred overnight, these including an anarchist disturbance at Barcelona where President Alcala was accused of having established a bourgeoise republic, and a clash between civil guards and workers on the Isla Cristina, near Huelva, where five persons were slightly injured.

Maj. Ramon Franco, Spanish aviation and revolutionary hero, who returned from asylum in France, today was put in charge of the military aeronautical service in Madrid.

Queen Marie of Rumania arrived in Paris today to visit the former Spanish King and Queen.

Spain Plans for New Pact With Vatican

(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service)

Madrid, April 17—A new agreement with the Vatican, preserving many of the rights and privileges enjoyed by the Roman Catholic church in Spain for centuries, but permitting the existence of all other churches also, will be sought shortly, Provisional President Niceto Alcala Zamora revealed.

Protection by the state, one of the most cherished possessions of the Catholic church under monarchical rule, would be continued in the new agreement, Zamora declared.

"While Roman Catholicism has been the leading faith of Spain for centuries, the actual relation between church and state was not defined until 1851, when the present concordat was signed. The agreement defined the Roman Catholic faith as the state religion and established the King as titular head of the church as well as of Spain.

sign posted in the Bausch and Lomb factory reminding the workers that such a day is "teeth cleaning time." Filtered dental hygienists from the Rochester dental dispensary will clean your teeth and chart any defects."

That service, which costs workers nothing, is another of George Eastman's ideas. His money established it.

Such tooth service can add years to a worker's life and usefulness, saving him from rheumatism and other crippling diseases that often start from infection at the root of a tooth.

Bausch and Lomb attend to the big, and the little, in their line. The factory that makes giant reflectors for protection against enemies in the air, also makes the tiniest of reflectors to be used in microscopic explorations. These little reflectors, hemispheres of highly polished glass one and one-half millimeters in diameter, are correct to within one one millionth part of an inch. And made of melted sand, they are worth, after science has applied its genius, more than if they were made of diamonds.

Mr. B. Forman, one of the most successful Rochester merchants just back from his fifth visit to California, says something that will interest that long strip of optimism, fertility and fine weather.

Mr. Forman is convinced that in time California will be the center of the needle trades, now the biggest individual industry in New York State. The needle trades, infinite in their variety, that employ tens of thousands of skilled workers, with products worth billions a year, will migrate inevitably to California, according to Mr. Forman. He says: "In California there is no problem of light or heat. The state undoubtedly will develop and provide cheap power and unlimited water. It possesses the style atmosphere necessary to the needle trades."

the verge of a severe breakdown when he went South and played golf.

"He appeared better when he returned, but a short time ago he was compelled to enter Brooks Hospital for treatment again. He was under treatment by Dr. George Morse, an old friend of the family, and in the last couple of days had seemed better."

WAS OUT FOR RIDE

Mrs. Holdsworth said she believed Holdsworth had argued the chauffeur into taking him downtown today.

The real estate broker left the hospital, in company with the nurse and chauffeur merely to go for a ride, the doctor agreeing that the air might benefit him.

They arrived at the office shortly after 10 a. m., and the three went upstairs to the offices of Holdsworth & Farrington on the fifth floor.

Here, Holdsworth is declared to have said that he wished to be alone, and to have signed important papers in his private office. He went in and locked the door.

NEIGHBORS GIVE ALARM

A short time later employes of other offices in the building entered and told Henry Kingman of 48 Fox st., assistant office manager, Brookline, and Miss Gladys H. Olmstead of 11 Cliff st., Melrose Highlands, secretary, that someone had fallen from the Holdsworth & Farrington offices.

Kingman rushed to the private office but found it locked. Then, with the nurse and chauffeur, he hastened to the street, to discover Holdsworth's body being placed in the automobile.

Holdsworth, in addition to his widow, is survived by Miss Barbara Holdsworth, 19, prominent in society and yachting; Nancy Holdsworth, 14, and Frederick Holdsworth, Jr., 13, students at Milton Academy.

The realtor was born in England 51 years ago, but came to America with his parents as a boy, residing in Fall River. He was graduated from Harvard in 1904 and entered the real estate business in Boston on small capital, building this up to a fortune believed to be several millions.

PROMINENT IN BROOKLINE.

He was prominent in public affairs in Brookline and ran for selectman in 1929, with the backing of the Brookline citizens' committee.

The Holdsworths have a summer home at Gloucester. His daughter, Barbara, is one of the most enthusiastic yachtswomen of the Gloucester colony. She has been sailing in the Eastern Point races and has held second honors in the series. They were raced in January.

Holdsworth was a director of several banks and trust companies, a leading member of real estate associations, including the Boston Real Estate Exchange, and was a member of the Country Club, Oakley Country Club, Harvard Club of Boston, Algonquin Club, University Club, Exchange Club and Bass Rocks Golf Club.

He had been president of the Eastern Point Association of Gloucester and was a member of Beta Heron Lodge, A. F. & A. M. For several years he was a vestryman of All Saints' Episcopal Church of Brookline and was a past president of the men's club of the same church.

New York, April 17—In a $15,000 coffin of solid bronze, the body of the late Giuseppe Masseria, New York's most recently slain racketeer, known in the underworld as "Joe the Boss," reposed today in his gaudy Manhattan home. An elaborate funeral is planned for him by gangland.

NAVY CRUISER BRINGS AID TO NICARAGUA

Memphis to Guard American Interests; Central American Policy Attacked

Washington, April 17 (AP)—Reinforcements for the naval forces gathering to protect Americans in insurgent-torn Nicaragua today reached Puerto Cabezas. The cruiser Memphis arrived there today and within an hour the gunboat Asheville left that port for Cape Gracias a Dios, some 60 miles up the coast.

The gunboat Sacramento is due at Bluefields later today. The cruiser Rochester was approaching Balboa, in the Canal Zone, enroute to the Nicaraguan east coast.

The Memphis, commanded by Capt. G. J. Meyers, carries 39 officers and 437 enlisted men of the navy. No marines are aboard, but an organized landing force is maintained which could go ashore in case of emergency.

The Sacramento, commanded by Commander W. W. Smith, has a complement of 11 officers and 163 enlisted men, but no marines.

The Asheville is manned by nine officers and 155 enlisted men and has aboard 33 marines and one marine corps officer.

As three defense efforts proceeded, Representative Fish, New York Republican, attacked the administration's attitude toward Nicaragua as a "hit-and-run" policy which "disgusted" him.

SOUP MAN LEFT $114,000,000

Mount Holly, N. J., April 17 (AP)—The personal estate of Dr. John T. Dorrence, who was head of the Campbell Soup Co., is appraised at $114,650,733 in an inventory filed in Surrogate Court today.

The largest item was Dr. Dorrance's interest in the soup company, valued at $79,03.,965. Deposits in eight banks in New York, Philadelphia, Camden and Boston totaled $4,032,430.

The total amount of inheritance taxes payable on the estate has been estimated at approximately $21,500,000, of which about $12,000,000 will go to New Jersey and the remainder to the federal government, and possibly some to the State of Pennsylvania.

The widow is to receive one-fourth of the net income of the estate in monthly installments, the son $20,000 a month, and four daughters $10,000 each a month. The remainder of the income is to go to making up the deficiency by payment of state and federal taxes. If this deficiency is made up before 1946 the estate is to be divided. If it is not made up in 16 years the division is to be made in 1946.

LABOR FIGHTS FOR FREE PRESS

Washington, April 17 (AP)—Organized labor and politicians and the relations of each to the press claimed the attention today of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor told the editors labor, in seeking relief from court injunctions, was fighting a campaign closely linked to freedom of the press. He said injunctions prohibiting organizations from distributing band bills and pamphlets regarding labor disputes closely approached infringement upon freedom of the press.

Frank R. Kent of the Baltimore Sun said politicians must depend entirely on publicity to be successful and wanted above all other things favorable publicity.

Yale Paper Attacks Senior Societies

New Haven, April 17 (AP)—Senior societies at Yale today receive attention of the Yale Alumni Weekly, which says, in its comment on them, and the approach of "Tap Day," that there is now "no reason or excuse for them."

It says "Tap Day" and "barbarous and juvenile public exhibitions of bad taste and manners" should be dropped, as should the whole worn out paraphernalia of the old senior society system, as new times have long called for a radical change in the social system at Yale.

PLOT TO ROB U. S. PAYROLL IS FOILED

Two Men Held in Scheme to Hold Up Auditor's Office and Steal $120,000

Washington, April 17 (INS)—Arthur Fisher, 24, lost his job today as a clerk in the auditor's office of the District of Columbia.

He awaits trial on a charge of soliciting for the commission of a felony because of his alleged sensational scheme to have the auditor's office robbed of its $120,000 payroll Memorial Day.

Philip K. Stumm, 20, of Syracuse, N. Y., also is held on a similar charge. Police claimed he told them about Fisher's alleged plot.

They said Fisher took Stumm into his confidence so he could import gangsters and a "machine gun man" from Brooklyn to execute the robbery.

The two men Fisher and Stumm talked with Wednesday in a hotel room turned out to be postal inspectors. When their session ended they left the room to face pistols of detectives waiting outside. Detectives heard about the robbery plan and ordered Stumm to continue meeting Fisher and introduce the inspectors as gangsters.

A diagram of the district building was found in Fisher's possession and as a result the auditor's office will be transferred to another floor and the whole first floor of the building rearranged to thwart any possible holdup in the future.

Fisher's father-in-law was the late Rep. Florian Lampert of Wisconsin.

Joseph Stalin

That's what he told a delegation of proletarian writers who recently called on him, armed with a gift of 25 volumes of their most recent works. Instead of the praise they expected, Stalin gave them some good advice about writing books.

"You might as well take these books back with you," he said. "When I take a rest and have time to read, I prefer Shakespeare. You turn out these books like hotcakes and they aren't worth much more."

CALLAN IN TEARS DURING ARGUMENTS IN DIVORCE ACTION

SOCIETY FOLK HEAR CLOSING OF ACTION

Former Rector Breaks Down as Lawyer Refers to the Will in Wife's Favor

John J. Callan, former rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, Wellesley, twice wept openly in probate court at Dedham today during closing arguments at the hearing of a divorce petition brought by Mrs. Callan, a niece of Bishop Lawrence.

He sobbed as his attorney, John P. Feeney, stressed to Judge John R. McCoole the fact that Callan's will, still standing, leaves everything to the woman who seeks to divorce him.

SOCIETY IN COURT

He sobbed again while Feeney read to the court his letter to the clerk of St. Andrew's, in 1928, concerning his impending resignation as rector of the parish.

A fashionable crowd thronged the court as the case drew toward a close. It heard Feeney protest Mrs. Callan's allegation that her husband was a confirmed imbiber of alcoholic beverages.

"Is that letter (to the church clerk) the letter of a confirmed drunkard?" Feeney demanded.

"No. A confirmed drunkard is a bum," he defined—"a bum, unable to do his business and a man who cannot have relations with his wife as he should. That's what a confirmed drunkard means."

He pointed out that Callan, before the stock crash, in which he lost a fortune, had deeded in his wife's name securities and property valued at $200,000.

He was equally vehement in his denial of Mrs. Callan's charge that the former cleric was cruel and abusive to her. There is no evidence that he was either cruel or abusive, the lawyer claimed.

"NO EVIDENCE OF CRUELTY"

"There is no case in the world where cruel and abusive treatment is supported by a charge of drunkenness," Feeney said.

"The evidence that went in was admitted for the purpose of showing gross and confirmed habits of intoxication. I don't ask you to disregard this evidence, but I do ask you to disregard all evidence in regards to drunkenness as connected with cruel and abusive treatment, except perhaps in one instance, on June 4, 1930, and the probable physical act then imposed.

Feeney belittled the inference that Callan's midnight horseback ride was the consumption of a drunken mind. It was for the purpose

LOVE FOR GIRL RIVAL WRECKS ROMANCE

Bridgeport Woman Tells of a Threat Made to Her Infatuated Husband

Bridgeport, Ct., April 17 (AP)—Mrs. Laura M. Clark was granted a divorce from J. Albert Clark, former head of the National Biscuit Company, in Connecticut, today.

Her testimony was to the effect that she had to ask for the decree "to save her husband from being shot."

Mrs. Clark testified she and her husband came here to live in 1921. Two years later he met a girl with whom he became infatuated. The young woman called him at his home and made engagements with him on the telephone, Mrs. Clark said. In 1924 all marital relations with her husband ceased.

Her husband told her then that he had to "make good to the girl" or get shot. The young woman with whom he became infatuated lives in Port Chester, N. Y., it came out, under questioning of Mrs. Clark's attorney.

Judge J. R. Booth awarded Mrs. Clark $100 a month allmony and custody of their child which had been agreed to by Clark who now lives in Lebanon, N. H.

Allen appeared before the board and denied any connection with the Lever Bros., Cambridge, $23,000 payroll holdup in 1925 for which he was sentenced.

Harold L. Coneeny testified Allen was not the man who held him up, and Capt Hurley of Cambridge said he tried to dissuade former Dist.-Atty. Reading from prosecuting Allen.

M'DONALD TO PUSH BUDGET

London, April 17 (INS)—Entrenched more firmly than ever after the House of Commons rods down a Conservative motion of censure by a surprisingly large majority of 54, the Labor Government of Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald prepared today to push through its long-delayed program.

The hearty support of David Lloyd George and 22 other Liberals saved the country from a general election that would have followed the Government's fall.

The motion of censure, reprimanding Premier MacDonald for failure to solve unemployment, introduced by Stanley Baldwin, was defeated 305 to 251.

The size of the majority indicated not only a renewed Labor-Liberal era of good feeling, but signified the MacDonald party now has a greater parliamentary following than it has had for some time.

Total gifts from all nations were slightly less than last year, but better than estimates based on economic conditions foresaw, amounting to about $3,000,000.

Italy's annual contribution of $325,000 remained unchanged.

She filed intentions on March 25 to marry Archibald Ingels of Revere, but nobody knows whether Beatrice Hebert, 14-year-old Saugus high school girl, has taken the solemn vows yet.

Miss Hebert has been a person of mystery in the past. Twice last winter she had the police of Boston, Lynn, Revere and Saugus on their toes trying to find her after she had run away from her Saugus home. Each time she was discovered working in Boston.

Blumer will return to Monroe by automobile this afternoon. With him are his brother, Adam, Sheriff Myron West and F. B. Lutzinger, president of the First National Bank of Monroe, who found him in the hotel shortly before 8 a. m.

Archie E. Wells, secretary-treasurer of the Blumer Company, in announcing the missing man had been found, said no money had been paid for his release.

ASKED TO 'TELL ON' ADELE RYAN

Depositions from notable figures in Boston and North Shore society are being sought by Mrs. Muriel Johnston, New York night club hostess, against Miss Adele Ryan, wealthy heiress, in a $500,000 alienation of affections suit now under way in the New York courts.

It was learned today that a motion was filed in the court seeking to have depositions taken here regarding alleged visits of Miss Ryan and Johnston here last summer. Mrs. Johnston's action alleges her dancer husband, Robert Johnston, was lured away from her by various enticements of Miss Ryan.

Included among the prominent society members whom Mrs. Johnston seeks to have questioned here are Mr. and Mrs. Louis Agassiz Shaw; Mrs. John S. Curtis, Mr. Shaw's mother; Hendricks Hallett Whitman, Mrs. Whitman and two maids in the Shaw summer home at Beverly Farms.

Mrs. Johnston also filed suit for divorce just prior to instigating her action against Miss Ryan. The latter filed a general denial of all the charges.

The complaint charges that Miss Ryan, who inherited $125,000,000, became so infatuated with her husband that she followed both of them in London; made her home near them on their return to New York and last summer induced Johnston to go to Boston. Mrs. Johnston says they were guilty of misconduct.

Since that time, the petitioner says, she has learned that Gorham married Pearl Clara at Batavia on June 6, 1913; that this woman still lives, and that the Clara-Gorham marriage never has been dissolved.

She asks that the court declare her marriage to Gorham null and void. One child was born of the union.

ESTELLE WANTS QUIET DECREE

Hollywood, April 17 (US)—As peaceful as a movie scene of a lovers' tryst will be Estelle Taylor's divorce action against Jack Dempsey.

At least that is the hope of the exotic screen personality, her attorney declared.

But if a peaceful suit is impossible . . . then Lawyer Joe Scott intimated that the good work of the advocates of a safe and sane Fourth of July will be undone.

Miss Taylor, he said, is definitely committed to the idea that any divorce action must be taken in Los Angeles. She hopes for a "peaceful suit" to avoid as "little publicity and notoriety as possible.

LAW BROKEN TO ENFORCE LAW—WICKERSHAM

Cincinnati, April 17 (AP)—Lawlessness among enforcement officers is being studied by the Wickersham Commission, which intends to consider "this ugly side of our officialdom" in its deliberations on the American judicial system.

Chairman Wickersham, of the Law Enforcement and Observance Commission, made this statement to the Cincinnati Regional Crime Committee.

"In the desperate effort to compel obedience to law," he said, "experience has shown that those charged with the high function of enforcing the law sometimes stoop to attain their ends by means as illegal as the acts they seek to punish or suppress.

"It is time a study should be made of this phase of our civilization, and that now in course of preparation for our commission will be presented as perhaps the first, or one of the first, attempts to put in concrete form for the public consideration this ugly side of our officialdom."

He made no reference to prohibition except to say that "overwhelming public interest" in the topic "has obscured the fact that the commission was charged with the duty to study and report on any other subject."

CALLAN DENIES ALL WIFE'S CHARGES

of saving a horse in danger, he said, and to aid him he called upon his 16-year-old daughter, an accomplished horsewoman.

The lawyer stressed the haste with which Mrs Callan sought a divorce after leaving her husband's home, signing a libel on the day following.

NO INJURIES NOTED

Callan's strength is as the strength of Dempsey, or nearly so, Feeney enlightened the court in going into the alleged attack by Callan on his wife on June 4, 1930.

"He came to her with his jaw protruding and his fists clenched and hit her not once, not twice, but three times, she said. He overstated his action on the stand. If he ever hit her that hard she'd be senseless on the floor. He can't control himself on the stand as far as action is concerned, but in the testimony he tells God's honest truth."

He drew attention to the fact that a druggist from whom she made a purchase on the day following the alleged assault noted no injuries of Mrs. Callan.

"Is that the condition of a woman just slugged by a man who is almost as strong as Dempsey? It is not a fact.

"I have confronted her with every living persons who she said was at her house when Callan was drunk and these people have testified that they never saw him that way.

"I have dug into State st. and brought in men who knew Callan when he was connected with the stock market. No one can say that they were biased in favor of John J. Callan.

RADIO CHECKUP OF RUSSELL EVIDENCE

heard that night and when they ended. He was also able to tell the time he went outside and swept the lane with a searchlight through the program he was listening to at the time.

The testimony that there was no car in the lane at 10:30 p. m. up to an unnamed time is doubly checked by the report sent on by the radio station authorities.

It is probably the first time that a radio program plays an important part in challenging the story of a person accused of murder.

ASKED FULL DETAILS

The filing of the report results from the efforts of Winward to establish beyond any doubt that his testimony was true. Several days ago he wrote to the officials at Schenectady and asked that they forward a complete account of the program broadcasted from 10 to 11 p. m. on Monday, April 6, explaining the reason for his request.

He asked that each number presented be recorded in the report and all details given down to the actual minutes of time, if possible.

A few days ago he received a reply.

The officials stated in substance they could compile such a report, but in view of the circumstances, they did not feel they should disclose it except to an official investigating the case.

Winward immediately replied and suggested the report be sent at once to Dist.-Atty. Crossley. The officials acted on this suggestion. The report is now in his hands.

CHECKS WITH STORY

It has been learned authoritatively that the report checks in every way with Winward's story.

Its filing gives a dramatic turn to the case, already overcrowded with sensational revelations. It also deals a telling blow to the defense story that Hathaway had parked his car in the lane for at least two hours.

The Massachusetts probers, with this confirmatory evidence, are now considerably strengthened in their efforts to establish jurisdiction for the crime in this State.

It has also been learned today that several angles of the case, apparently forgotten in the past few days, have by no means been abandoned.

For one thing the theory that the girl was murdered in a Fall River house is still being given serious consideration. Again the raccoon coat of young Hathaway crops up once more. The State detectives are also interested in the condition of the girl's body and clothing when she was found.

COAT STILL SOUGHT

It was learned today that the State detectives know Hathaway had in his possession the key of a Fall River apartment and that this apartment was at his disposal for entertaining his friends.

Several persons who may have some knowledge of this angle of the case have been questioned. The probers also have indicated that their questioning of certain persons has not been completed. Their theory is that persons already questioned may break under the strain and give some information along this line.

The story that a man in a long fur coat was seen apparently fixing a tire in the lane on the murder night was not considered as important by the Massachusetts probers after investigation.

It was revealed, however, that the raccoon coat would probably be one of the strongest points in the prosecution of the case.

It has been missing since Hathaway left Galvin early on the Tuesday after the murder. If it is not produced when the case goes to trial, it is a convincing point for the prosecution to develop.

It has also been learned that Dr. George Burgess Magrath is greatly interested in the missing fur coat and the missing slip covers for the seats of Hathaway's car.

Dr. Magrath to Give His Theory on Nurse Murder

Providence, April 17 — Atty.-Gen. McLyman, directing the Rhode Island probe of the Verna Russell murder, will confer here late today with Dist. Atty. William C. Crossley and Dr. George B. Magrath, who are seeking Massachusetts' jurisdiction of the crime.

Dr. Magrath is expected to make known the conclusions of his study of evidence gathered by officials of both states.

Atty.-Gen. McLyman went to Fall River this morning, but on business not connected with the murder investigation. Rhode Island state police were reported to be working on a new clue in Tiverton and Newport.

Cohen Freed From S Fugitive Charge

A fugitive from justice complaint against Alfred D. Cohen of Providence, was today dismissed by Judge Francis Goode in Municipal court when headquarters inspectors informed the court Cohen had voluntarily surrendered to Rhode Island authorities.

NOBLE REPORT OFF TILL MAY

Lawrence, April 17—The report of the State allenists on the mental status of Russell Noble, alleged hammer slayer of Mrs. Clara E. C. Ellis, will not reach Essex County authorities until the former Haverhill schoolboy is indicted by the grand jury, which convenes May 11.

This was announced today by Dist. Atty. Hugh A. Craig.

"There is as yet no formal court order for a sanity test and we must await the action of the grand jury and the superior court before we can officially accept a report on his sanity," Craig said.

Meanwhile, in his cell here, Noble today looked forward to a fifth visit by Dr. Clarence A. Bonner and Dr. L. Vernon Briggs, alienists.

New Liner 1018 Feet Long

London, April 17 (INS)—Specifications of the new giant Cunard liner published here today revealed that the vessel will weigh 73,000 tons and will be 1018 feet long and 115 feet wide. The rudder, the largest ever built, will weigh over 15 tons.

SUIT LOOMS ON GIFT TO QUEEN

Pittsburgh, April 17 (AP)—The departure of King Alfonso and Queen Victoria from Spain has created a question concerning the $100,000 gift bequeathed to the queen for charitable purposes by Alexander P. Moore, late ambassador to Spain.

Counsel for the Moore estate said today the courts may be called upon to decide the validity of the gift in the event the queen does not return to the throne. They said if action were taken it would have to be started by the residuary beneficiaries.

Moore's will is being contested by his stepdaughter, Dorothy Russell Calvit, who claims half of the estate, valued at $500,000.

Police Chasing Marshall Neilan

Los Angeles, Cal., April 17 (INS)—Charges of failure to provide for his son today caused officers to seek Marshal Neilan, film director, for a court appearance.

Mrs. Gertrude Neilan claims the director is $9500 behind in his weekly alimony payments.

Lights of the Aurora to Be Brought Into American Homes

New York, April 17 (INS)—The multi-colored lights of the aurora Borealis, thus far reserved for adventurers in the Arctic, are to be made available to housewife and workman through natural color movies, Capt. Finval M. Williams, scientist, revealed last night.

Capt. Williams announced that his expedition, carrying U. S. Navy scientists and civilian explorers, is to sail for Fort Conger July 20. It will be equipped with a Ryan monoplane for flights over the North Pole.

Six Saved in Fire

Chicopee, April 17 (AP)—Six persons, including five children, were rescued by firemen and 11 other persons, among them nine children, were driven to the street early today, when fire damaged a two-tenement house in Willimansett.

30,000 FACE DEPORTATION

Montreal, April 17—Thirty thousand Canadians living in New England face deportation, it was estimated last night by H. R. Landis, U. S. commissioner of immigration here.

Commissioner Landis explained that the law under which action is being taken was passed in March, 1929, and provides a penalty of $1000 or one year's imprisonment for entering the United States without passing the examination and inspection by immigration inspectors.

Those deported or allowed to leave voluntarily after deportation proceedings can never re-enter the United States legally, he said. A penalty of two years' imprisonment or a fine of $1000 is provided if they try to re-enter.

A period of 60 days was allowed before the law went into effect.

Kills Self in Gas Oven

Danbury, Ct., April 17 (INS)—Stephen Borcos, whose body was found with head lying in a gas oven here today, killed himself because he felt he was a burden to his family.

YOUTHS HUNTED FOR FIRING ON POLICE

Middleboro, April 17—Posses of State and local police today combed the region surrounding Middleboro for Peter Kontoes, 18, and his 14-year-old brother, Harry, who, officers charge, fired several shots at two Middleboro policemen early today.

The police were aided in their search by Alexander Kontoes, the boy's father, who appealed to the police for protection. He told authorities he feared reprisals for a lecture he delivered to Peter last night.

James, 19, another brother, is being held in Middleboro police station charged with breaking and entering a chain store last Monday night.

Both Peter and James are on parole from reformatories.

The two older youth were taken to the station last night for questioning regarding the burglary. They were released, but a remark made by one of them resulted in the issuance of warrants.

Chief Alden Sisson and other officers searched for the pair until 2 o'clock this morning, when they heard they had returned home.

James was arrested at the house, but Peter fled to the second floor and threatened the officers with a gun. Then he jumped from the window and fled in the darkness, taking Harry with him.

As police left the station after locking James in a cell, they were fired upon by a fusilade of shots. They sought refuge in the station and when they came out their assailants had disappeared.

COURT SILENT FOR DEAD JUDGE

Justices of the Superior Criminal Court of Suffolk County today suspended their sessions for one minute while they stood in silent prayer in tribute to the memory of their associate, Judge John D. McLaughlin, who dropped dead on the bench late yesterday.

Judge McLaughlin, a veteran of 20 years' service on the Superior Court bench, died of heart trouble while sitting in an overtime case in the jury waived session at Middlesex Court, East Cambridge.

Chief Justice Walter Perley Hall, at the opening of court this morning, stood at the bench and said:

"It is my painful duty to announce the death of my associate, Judge John D. McLaughlin. Let us rise and stand for one minute in silent prayer."

In every Superior courtroom in the country his associates followed his example.

Judge McLaughlin was 66 years old and lived at 136 Mt. Vernon st., Beacon Hill. He was a graduate of Georgetown University, Georgetown Law School and Boston University Law School. He had served as assistant district attorney of Suffolk County and as assistant corporation counsel for the City of Boston.

Headed by Frederick W. Mansfield, president, a delegation from the Massachusetts Bar Association will attend the last rites tomorrow morning at the Cathedral of the Sacred Heart. Practically every legal society in Massachusetts will be represented at the funeral, together with the judge's associates on the bench and in the legal profession.

Following the solemn high mass of requiem, burial will take place in the family plot in Forest Hills Cemetery.

$11,000 to Lowell Man in a Crossing Crash

Lowell, April 17 (AP)—A jury today awarded $11,000 to Arthur Gravelle of Lowell for personal injuries, and $500 to Arthur E. Dubois of Lowell for damage to his automobile in their suit against the New Haven Railroad. Gravelle was driving Dubois' car when it was struck at Newton Upper Falls by a locomotive Feb. 21, 1929. Judge Nelson P. Brown, however, told the jury he reserved the right to review the case and overturn its decision.

About People You Know in Boston Stores

—By FRANCES L. BAIRD—

RECORD IS SOUGHT

At a mass meeting of several hundred employes of Filene's basement, today, plans for attempting to set a sales record tomorrow were outlined by Robert List, basement service superintendent, and Harold Hodgkinson, merchandise manager.

This attempt will be known as the "big parade day" sale. A store-wide contest for the nearest estimate to the actual amount of business done on that day was announced, with a $10 gold piece as the prize.

The committee directing the event is composed of Tom Quinn, Lillian Nevins, Joseph Selig, Willis Quinby, May Carr, Albert Good and Fred Crowley.

PROMOTIONS AT GILCHRIST'S

Effective next Monday, Thomas Cox becomes basement superintendent, replacing Robert Smith; Malcolm Balmayne will become floor superintendent in the main store, taking the position formerly held by Mr. Cox; John D. Corbett will become selling assistant buyer of the rug and linoleum departments.

Mrs. Louise Pomeroy has been promoted from assistant buyer to acting buyer of the house furnishings department.

MISS ANDERSON RETURNS

Plaid effects were also prominent in new pottery, she said, these being used as accessories to provincial furniture. In Paris, she found smoke-color glass outstanding, and in Italy a change was noted in the marble creations. Instead of busts in white and colors, they are making bowls, urns and grecian shaped vases. Imitation semi-precious stones, such as rose quartz, celedon and amber. She found prices the lowest in her experience.

Miss Anderson told of her trip at a meeting of the china department staff yesterday. In the group were: Floor Superintendent T. S. Conway and Elizabeth Howe, Kathleen Loane, Nora Dempsey, Elizabeth Sullivan, Frances Field, Mrs. Marsh, J. N. E. R. Robillard, Margaret Murphy, Marie Noonan, Dorothy Downing, Helen Finney, Ruth Purdy, Ida M. Wade, Mable Holloway and Mrs. Helen Larrabee.

WINNING PLAYS CAST

The four plays selected by the playlet committee of R. H. White Co. have been cast, and the rehearsals will begin the first of next week. These plays will be presented early next week under direction of the training department, Miss H. Adale Howe, director. Miss Barbara Bonney, Miss Beatrice Ewing and Miss Gayle Sanders of the training department staff will coach the players.

Those taking parts in "Save That Sale," to be given by the street floor group are: Miss Dagmar Flannagan, of bargain aisle; Miss Alice Hossberger, hosiery, and Miss Catherine Protopapas, hosiery.

"Every Customer Has a Story," by second floor members: Miss Marianne Powers, furs; Miss Helen Eggleston, millinery; Miss Rita Wick, underwear; Mrs. Agnes Pierson, women's coats; and Miss Millicent Hill, misses' gowns.

"One in a Thousand," given by the third and fifth floors: Thomas Murray, rugs; J. Church, rugs; Earl Johnson, upholstery; Mrs. Rachel Kelley, housewares; Miss Marie O'Brien, radios; and Miss Ethel Rothberg, upholstery.

"Borax," given by the fourth floor members: John Mangurian, Frank McCabe and Homer Hopkins, all in furniture.

NAFTEL IN CHARGE

Mrs. Gattie Bleich, founder of the New York Dress Manufacturing Co., has turned her duties at the store over to her brother, A. H. Naftel since the birth of a son recently. The baby has been named Stephen Francis.

Nature is so inconsiderate!

POOR Alice! As old-fashioned as her mother. In mother's day there was no help for the girl who suffered every month. But this is 1931!

A million modern women have ended their monthly martyrdom to pain. They make engagements—and keep them—without a thought to the time of month.

And so can you.

If you want your periods to be painless, take Midol—a medicine made for the purpose. Take it in time, and the pain won't even start. If the pains have started, they will subside in from five to seven minutes. No matter how hard a time you've always experienced, Midol never fails.

How can anything so harmless—for Midol is not a narcotic—be so effective, and act so quickly?

Only the specialists who found this wonderful antidote for pain can answer that. But any woman who has tried it can tell you that Midol will remove your last excuse for ever giving-in to periodic pains, headaches, etc.

Jay Heiress to Wed

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

New York, April 17 (US)—Notwithstanding that almost an entire page in the Social Register is devoted to the Jay family, one hears all too seldom of the polite gyration and amenities of that socially mellowed clan.

Recently, however, the Jays have emerged from their self-imposed social retirement and great interest will be manifest in the announcement of Louisa Jay's bethrothal to Impre De Vegh of Budapest, Hungary.

The engagement was made known formally at a tea given yesterday afternoon at the Jay apartment, 755 Park ave., and I am told the wedding will be solemnized in the near future.

LOANS TO NET 71 MILLIONS TO U. S.-WOLMAN

The Government stands to make a net profit of $71,000,000 on the veterans' bonus loans, National Comdr. Paul C. Wolman of the Veterans of Foreign Wars declared today.

Arriving in Boston for his annual visitation to Massachusetts, Comdr. Wolman paid a tribute to William Randolph Hearst and the Hearst newspapers, declaring the publisher to be the best friend of the veterans.

PRAISES LAWS HERE.

Comdr. Wolman and his party were received by the Governor, and the veterans' leader addressed the Senate, thanking them for laws in behalf of service men which he said were a model for other states.

In his tribute to Mr. Hearst for aid in putting through the bonus loan, Commander Wolman said:

"Mr. Hearst was the most outstanding publisher in helping to get the bonus loan bill through. He has been the best friend any veteran has had from a publisher's point of view.

"His emphasis on the desirability of amending the veterans' bill to increase the loan value of the bonus had a great deal to do with the ultimate passage of the amendment.

"Of all chain newspaper owners Mr. Hearst was the only one with courage to stand by the veterans unflinchingly and to dispute the capitalists who opposed them. Some of the prophecies he made at this time have been borne out already.

SEES BIG PROFIT

"The Secretary of the Treasury and others had said it would be impossible to get the money at a sufficiently low rate. Mr. Hearst said the money could be obtained. These figures show he was right.

"The treasury has borrowed $1,400,000,000, $300,000,000 of this for six months at 1½ per cent; $600,000,000 for one year at 1 per cent and issued $500,000,000 in treasury bonds payable in 13 years at 3½ per cent.

"The Government stands to make 14 per cent on these bonds in 13 years, a net profit of $71,000,000."

On arrival Commander Wolman and his party visited the Veterans' Bureau, where they were greeted by Col. William J. Blake, regional manager. They then proceeded to the State House to be received by Governor Ely.

Following his brief address to the Senate, the commander being introduced by President Caspar G. Bacon, he inspected the quarters in the State House of the Spanish War Veterans, G. A. R., American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

In the party were Dr. Julian D. Lucas, Massachusetts department commander; Eugene P. Carver of Brookline, past national and state commander; Mrs. Irene Hurley of Lynn, state president ladies' auxiliary; Mrs. Dora Haffenberger of Philadelphia, national senior vice-president of the auxiliary; Mrs. Grace Davis of New Jersey, national secretary and treasurer, and Mrs. Ada Harrison of New Haven, national president.

Coming to Boston for his annual visitation to the Massachusetts Veterans of Foreign Wars, Paul C. Woolman, national commander, was received at the State House by Gov. Bennett on One Page Willed $500,000

London, April 17 (INS) —The will of Arnold Bennett, famous writer, today disposed of what is regarded here as the biggest literary fortune in history.

Written on a sheet of note paper, it made bequests exceeding $500,000. No British author, so far as could be learned, left such a sum. Charles Dickens left $400,000 and Anthony Trollope $350,000

'SNOOPER ROLE' SPURNED BY WALKER

New York, April 17 (AP)—Mayor Walker, against whom charges of incompetency have been filed with Governor Roosevelt, has decided on the keynote of his reply. It will assert that the mayor is an administrative officer, "not a detective."

"It is not the mayor's business," he said, "to open desks and drawers and go snooping and sniffing around corners to check up hourly on the actions of 130,000 city employes."

His answer, running into thousands of pages of statistics and history, will be delivered to the Governor shortly.

In Albany, Commissioner Samuel Seabury, directing the ouster proceedings against District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain, conferred with the Governor yesterday almost two hours.

Crain has received notice the next phase of the inquiry will bring into question the prosecution of Charles V. Bob and various stock frauds. One witness will be Watson M. Washburn, former assistant attorney-general in charge of the Bureau of Securities, who turned over the evidence against Bob to Crain.

Fiancee Shares $9865 Verdicts for Man's Death in Crash

Springfield, April 17—Verdicts for $9865 against Huck's Transfer, Inc., were returned in Superior Court today for the estate of Thomas F. Griffin, who was killed, and two persons injured in a collision here Feb. 11, 1929.

The estate was awarded $3365. Miss Anna Martin, engaged to marry Griffin, was awarded $4000 and Thomas Cantwell $2500.

The auto in which they were riding hit the rear of a truck backing from a freight yard. A steel girder on the truck killed Griffin and injured the others.

POISON DRINK KILLS WOMAN

Worcester, April 17—A poison "cocktail" mixed with suicidal intent, according to police, took the life of Mrs. Katherine Brown, 60, of 17 Winfred ave., early today and indirectly caused injuries to two children.

While the police ambulance was speeding to the home of Mrs. Brown it was in collision with an automobile in which Donald Armitage, 8, of 20 Fordham st., Arlington, and his sister Phyllis, 5, were riding. The children were cut and bruised.

According to police, Mrs. Brown had been ill two years and was suffering from depression.

The second will deal with "Prosecution," and will go into methods and practices related to the prosecution of criminals in federal, state and municipal courts. The third report will deal with juvenile offenders and the fourth with deportation laws.

Criminal justice and the foreign-born will be the subject of the fifth report, and the sixth one will be an exhaustive study of the cost of crime in the country.

The seventh will be a study of penal institutions, probation and parole. The eighth will deal with causes of crime.

Government lawlessness will be the subject of the ninth report, which is supposed to deal with unlawful actions of officials.

DE LANGE TALKS ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

A lecture entitled "Christian Science: The Science of Divine Dominion" was given by Dr. Hendrik Jan de Lange, C. S., of The Hague, Holland, in The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, last evening.

Dr. de Lange was introduced by Mrs. Elisabeth F. Norwood, C. S. B., second reader in The Mother Church, and said in part:

"The Christian Science textbook tells us that 'God will heal the sick through man, whenever man is governed by God' (p. 495). Then let us be governed by this God who is Love; let us express this Love so lovingly, so purely, so powerfully that sickness will vanish away and disease be forsaken. Let us love so tenderly that hatred will melt into nothingness, and condemnation will have no abiding place. Thus we will show forth this healing and redeeming Christ-power. It will take care of the human needs of ourselves and of those who come to be healed and comforted. The human need is for something apart from its own fears and limitations and condemnations; it is always ultimately for divine, infinite Love.

"To understand that the answer exists before the petition, is true prayer, the prayer of understanding, as taught in Christian Science. Why is this so? Because everything which is divinely real and worth while to be desired and possessed is already existing in divine Mind. Jesus knew this when he prayed with all humility and meekness before Lazarus came forth, 'Father, I thank thee that thou hast heard me. And I knew that thou hearest me always'. His divinely scientific affirmation brought forth the humanly practical demonstration."

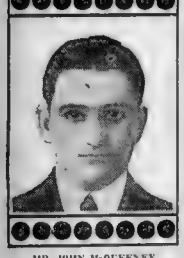
"NEVER BEFORE FELT SO WELL"

So Says Young Boston Resident When Konjola Brings Results He Sought

Don't go on suffering, day after day, from indigestion, constipation, and nervousness. Put an end to agony from rheumatism and neuritis. Get up in the morning feeling rested and refreshed; don't let your work be a drudgery any longer.



MR. JOHN McQUEENEY

Hundreds of Boston people have tried Konjola . . . and in hundreds of cases Konjola proved just the medicine they needed. There is no mystery, no experimenting about Konjola . . . here is a medicine made to make good and does it. Konjola's 29 ingredients, 22 of them the juices of roots and herbs, go right to the very source of the ills for which it is designed. Talk with the Konjola Man at the Enstein drug store Scollay Square, Boston, years of ease after case similar to that of Mr. John McQueeny, 67 Bainbridge street, Roxbury. Here is what he says about Konjola and its works:

"I never before felt so well since taking Konjola. Indigestion and constipation was the cause of all my trouble. My bowels were irregular. I had bilious attacks and I lacked energy and ambition although I am only a young man. I suffered gas bloating, and my heart beat like a trip hammer. I tried many medicines but I seemed to get worse instead of better. Konjola made a wonderful change in me. My bowels work regularly; I eat anything I want without after distress and gas and biliousness are gone. My liver and kidneys work fine. I sleep well, and I get up feeling refreshed and full of energy, ready for the day's work. Konjola does all claimed for it."

So it goes; victory after victory whenever Konjola is given the chance to prove its merits. Demand Konjola, and get it; refuse a substitute. The Konjola Man is at the Epstein's, Scollay Square (Epstein Drug Co.), Boston, where daily he is meeting those who come to ask about Konjola. Konjola is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

FEW YALE MEN FINDING JOBS

New Haven, Ct., April 17 (INS) — "Seven-eighths of the university is seeking employment and only a small fraction is finding it," according to the undergraduate edition of the Yale Alumni Weekly issued today.

"Together with the increase of men who want summer jobs, there has come a sharp decline in the number of families that are engaging tutor companions for the summer and the number of beach clubs that have openings for brawny Yale men as lifeguards."

The weekly adds that:

"Many men who previously spent their summers yachting or golfing today form long lines outside the various offices of the employment department in the search for money-making jobs for the summer."

Stevens Selected

Washington, April 17—The Treasury selected John Howard Stevens of Portland, Me., as architect for the postoffice building here.

COLLEGE LIFE 'TOO FAST'

Cleveland, April 17 (AP)—Modern college life was charged today with undermining the health of students and sending out run-down men and women to do the pioneering work of the world.

The indictment was made by Dr. Lee H. Ferguson, director of the student health service at Western Reserve University and chairman of the committee on tuberculosis of the national conference on college hygiene, which will report to the conference at Syracuse next month.

"Modern college life is taking a terrific toll among students," he said. "It is affecting particularly the most valuable students, most of whom are living contrary to all rules of health.

"College social life has made an attempt to duplicate night club life of New York. Social affairs are carried over to breakfast time."

Extend Picket Lines

Auto Victim Dies

John O'Connor, 62, an employe of the Watertown highway department, died at the Waltham Hospital of injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile at Main and Oakland sts., Watertown.

Slayer of 1000 Beheaded

Shanghai, April 17 (US)—Reputed to have been the perpetrator of 1000 murders and robberies, Hautiew-Yung, the Chekiang outlaw, was beheaded here.

GALA OPENING OF FAMOUS ROADHOUSE SATURDAY NIGHT

Saturday evening, April 18th, marks the sixth season and grand opening of Rainbow Gardens in Walpole on the post road between Providence and Boston which is again opening under the personal direction of Victor F. Pini, famous restaurateur of Massachusetts.

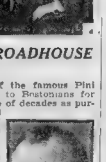
Mr. Pini has engaged the services of his brother Selo, who is perhaps one of the best known chefs in this part of the country.

Vin Vincent and his famous broadcasting orchestra will furnish the music which is one of the best dancing orchestras ever assembled in any motor inn or roadhouse.

Feature specialties this season will be the famous Rainbow Steak Dinners, special prepared duck, chicken and lobster dinners. Ample facilities at Rainbow Gardens are available to take care of large and small parties with a seating capacity close to 700, and plenty of room for outdoor sports and athletic meets.

Select groups of people at Rainbow Gardens from surrounding towns and cities may be seen every evening. No more popular place could be picked than Rainbow Gardens, under the personal direction, the same as previous seasons, of Victor F. Pini. For reservations call "Frank," Walpole 500.

Victor Pini



Selo Pini

Selo Pini, of the famous Pini family, known to Bostonians for the past couple of decades as purveyors and delicacies of fine foods, is to be located at Rainbow Gardens this season as head chef.

Selo's brother, Leon, who has been one of the outstanding successful roadhouse managers, and brother Victor identified with Rainbow Gardens at Walpole, are put ups two of the outstanding members of the Pini family.

Both Leon and Victor were formerly associated with the Woodcock Cafe—which was one of the most widely known restaurants in America under the careful jurisdiction of Fred Ramsey. After prohibition went into effect the boys branched out in various directions. They first started together at the American House, afterward taking the restaurant property on the Avery.

Victor then became Managing Director of Rainbow Gardens and under his careful guidance it has become one of the most popular dining and dancing resorts on the Boston post road to Providence. Selo's apprenticeship really started at the famous Hotel Touraine. From there he went to the Vendome. Then he became chef of the Hotel Bond at Hartford. Then back to Boston at the Hotel Kenmore. Later he was head chef under his brother Leon's management at Weber Duck Inn and now at Rainbow Gardens.

Selo has specialized and experimented in new food concoctions which please the American taste. His latest concoction for Rainbow Gardens this season will be known as Pini's "Lobster Thermos."

With Victor F. Managing Director of Rainbow Gardens and brother Selo as Head Chef, the patrons of Rainbow Gardens this season are to be catered to in a two-fold manner.

Rainbow Gardens opens for the season April 18th with an extra two nights' festivities to follow Sunday, April 19, and Monday—holiday—being the 20th.

20 ARRESTED AS MEMBERS OF CRIME RING

New York, April 17 (AP)—Twenty persons, one a woman, were under arrest today as members of what police said was a crime syndicate that sold murder, arson and robbery as a grocer sells potatoes.

New York and Newark detectives, who participated in the roundup, said the gang was responsible for three killings, six cases of arson and numerous holdups. Counterfeiting was carried on as a side line, police said.

Ten of the men under arrest were taken in Paterson, N. J., and Staten Island. Newark police arrested the others.

The crimes blamed by police upon the gang include the killing of Eugene Lynch, Newark chain store manager, and of Herman Tietz and Peter De Palma, Newark druggists.

Detectives said a price scale was arranged by the gang, for instance, they declared, an arson job on an ordinary two-story frame dwelling cost $500.

LOVESICK GIRL HURLS ROCKS

Salem, April 17—Love, coming to Eddie Lynch in several sizes, had Eddie's dad and the police worried today until the identity of a "phantom rocketeer" was discovered.

The love messages raining against the Lynch home at 21 Williams st. were merely ordinary rocks in the beginning—but then it was discovered that the rocks were being thrown by a young girl who is in love with the younger Eddie and "wants to marry him."

According to the much-embarrassed object of the iron-armed girl's affections, she chooses rock-throwing at the Lynch home as the best way to attract Eddie's attention.

The police and the other occupants of the Lynch home will endeavor to persuade the girl that the softer methods of wooing are more successful.

Prince and Three Others in Air Crash

Bombay, India, April 17 (AP)—Four persons, including Prince Rubroco, president of the International Aeronautic Federation and head of the ancient Bibesco family of Rumania, were seriously injured today when their airplane crashed between Moghal Sarai and Gaya, Bengal.

The Prince was making a flight from Le Bourget field, near Paris, to French Indo-China, studying possibilities of reforms in the flying regulations. The names of the other occupants of the plane were not learned.

Notes and Gossip About People You Know

MAYOR NEVER FORGETS

ELECTED DRUM MAJOR

Kenneth MacDonald of the municipal employment bureau has just been elected drum major of the Milton Post, American Legion, drum and bugle corps. He has been active in the affairs of the corps for several years past.

VACATION DAYS OVER

Frankie Pedonti of Mayor Curley's office has returned to City Hall after a two weeks' vacation at Jefferson, Mass.

NEVINS MAY RUN

John F. Nevins, secretary to the Dorchester Young Men's Club, and a member of the Democratic ward committee of Ward 15 for the past 12 years, is being urged to be a candidate for City Council from that district. He has been active in political affairs in the ward for a score of years.

ON THE ROAD TO HEALTH

"Mel" Eastman of the municipal employment bureau, who was stricken with pneumonia a month ago is now recuperating at his home in South Boston. He will not be able to return to work for at least six weeks.

DONOVAN HOLDS SILENCE

City Councillor Timothy J. Donovan of East Boston, will neither affirm nor deny the oft repeated statement that he will be a candidate for Congress this fall. City Hall gossip has it that "Tim" will receive the support of Martin M. Lomasney despite the fact that the present incumbent, Congressman John J. Douglas, was a Lomasney candidate at the time of his election.

OIL PORTRAIT OF ELY

A. L. Wolf, a New York artist has made a large oil painting of Governor Ely, copied from a photograph. The painting is at the State House preliminary to its being placed on exhibition in Boston by the artist.

MESSAGE OF SYMPATHY

Whitfield Tuck of Winchester, president of the Thomas Jefferson League of Massachusetts, has sent resolutions to Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, deploring the passing of her distinguished husband. The resolutions were adopted at the recent dinner of the League at the Hotel Commander, Cambridge.

MRS. EHRMANN ACTIVE

A favorable report on the measure looking to an investigation on the advisability of doing away with the death penalty in this state, rendered by the legislative committee on judiciary, is due in no small measure to the activities of Mrs. Sara Ehrmann of Brookline. Mrs. Ehrmann is the wife of Atty. Herbert Ehrmann, who was associated with William G. Thompson in the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

THE "CARRIAGE TRADE" COMES TO THE A&P!

Years ago "carriage trade" meant a liveried coachman and a Victoria. Today it means motor cars and baby buggies. You'll find both parked at A & P stores. The motor car trade indicates the careful buying of women who prefer to see what they buy and who are not ashamed to save a dollar by paying cash and carrying their own bundles. The "baby buggy trade" shows the confidence that the mothers have in the quality of A & P foods, and how much the modern homemaker appreciates A & P savings.

N. H. SOLONS IN NEW 'RACKET' FOR CASH

Concord, N. H., April 17 (AP)—The Concord Monitor said today that according to rumors in the State House, certain members of the Legislature have "discounted their paychecks at terms below the amount they would receive for attendance" and returned home for the balance of the session. This condition, the newspaper advances as the reason for poor attendance.

The Monitor refers to the alleged practice as a "new racket" and continues:

"The members are said $200 each. The plan worked, according to reports, is for an 'advance' to be made to a legislator who agrees to indorse over his salary check when the session adjourns.

"Harry M. Young, one member, is reported to have sold his check of $100 for pay and his mileage check of undetermined amount for $160 cash. Other members have cashed their checks in 'advance.'

"When roll calls have been demanded recently it has been found that quorums were lacking in the House."

RICHES IN CUT RATE TICKETS

New York, April 17 (AP)—Joe Leblang, who made a fortune selling theater tickets at cut rates, died of heart disease today.

Leblang, born in Budapest 57 years ago, set up as a newsstand proprietor when he came to this country as a boy. A ticket brokerage was his next venture.

His establishment in the basement of a Times sq. drug store is thronged nightly at theater time as persons hunting for last-minute bargains.

With the capital gained by selling tickets at cut rates, Leblang invested heavily in real estate. He was considered one of the wealthiest of the Broadwayites.

Carol Will Pick His Own Cabinet

Bucharest, Rumania, April 17 (AP)—King Carol, thwarted in efforts to obtain a normal constitutional cabinet, today returned to his original plan to constitute a non-political government to replace that of the premier, M Mironescu, resigned.

The cabinet, as is now projected will contain men chosen by the monarch himself, and not by the politicians or the nation.

Alcoholic Tonics Barred

Sacramento, Cal., April 17 (AP)—An urgency measure to prohibit the sale of alcoholic tonics, such as those which are blamed for the death or paralysis of scores of persons in California in recent months, has been signed by Governor Rolph.

Man About Town

—By AL DUFFY—

Hearts and Flowers

At heart, we're just an Old Softy—a rank sentimentalist. We've sort of suspected it since that day Al Jolson made us cry by singing "Sonny Boy," but now we're sure of it.

Three times this week we've dropped into the Keith-Boston to see Pat Rooney's act and three times the tears have come to our eyes and a lump has come to our throat as the orchestra swung softly into the strains of "Rosie O'Grady" and the ageless Pat began the waits clog that has made him famous. It's the sort of a feeling that makes you want to thump the back of whoever is sitting next to you and shout, "Isn't he swell? Isn't it good to see him again?" And when the dance is finished you find yourself grinning delightedly through the mist that clouds your eyes, fighting an almost overpow'ring desire to shout "Atta BOY Pat!"

For Pat Rooney is still a boy. What does it matter that his hair is white? What does it matter that he has a son who is even taller than his Dad? What does it matter that you can remember your own dad taking you to see Pat Rooney forty years ago?

Only one other person has made us feel exactly as Pat Rooney does and she is another star of yesteryear who has laughed defiantly at Time. We mean Fritzi Scheff on that night, two years ago, when she came back to the Broadway that had toasted her a quarter of a century before and electrified her audience with her unforgettable "Kiss Me Again" in "Mlle. Modiste."

More power to you, Pat Rooney! May we applaud your magic feet for many years to come! When we're in our declining years we'll gather our grandchildren to our knee and tell them about you.

"There," we'll say, "there was a dancer!"

Once a Press Agent

Harry (Olympia p. a.) Brown, is a firm believer in the art of ballyhoo. And why shouldn't he believe? It's doesn't he get his bread and butter from it. But, that's getting away from our story.

Harry moved yesterday and, after the moving men had settled his furniture nicely in his new apartment, Harry decided that there had been too much matter-of-factness about the whole operation. No one seemed to be excited about the fact that Harry Brown had just moved into the neighborhood. So Harry gathered himself a choice assortment of rubbish and went out in the rear courtyard of the apartment where he started an innocent looking bonfire. Then Harry went away and left the bonfire to take care of itself. The result was that within half an hour all of the fire apparatus in Brighton was parked in front of Harry's house and EVERYONE knew that Harry had just moved in.

NEW FIGHT TO SAVE SOARIS FROM CHAIR

A new fight to save from the electric chair Joaquim Pita Soaris, for whom the president of Portugal has twice appealed to President Hoover, was launched today.

The first move was in securing a week's postponement of the death sentence which was to have been pronounced today by Judge James H. Sisk in Middlesex Superior Court.

Coincident with this, it was revealed that President Hoover, being informed President Carmona of Portugal through the state department that he has no power in the matter, has had the appeal turned over to Gov. Ely.

Soaris was convicted of slaying his sweetheart, Angelina Rodrigues, 17, and Matilda Silva, 10, while drunk and in a jealous rage at a wedding in Lowell a year ago last March.

Associate Justice Edward A. Counihan, Jr., of the East Cambridge district court obtained the postponement of sentence today after notifying the court he was entering the case as counsel for Soaris.

It is understood a new trial will be asked on the ground that a government alienist questioned Soaris through an insane prisoner as interpreter at Bridgewater State Hospital.

GILLETTE ASKS SECRET TRIAL

Attorney Robert G. Dodge, counsel for directors of the Gillette Safety Razor Co., who are being sued for $21,000,000 by minority stockholders, today asked Judge Pierce of the Supreme Court to bar newspapermen and spectators at hearings in New York city.

Witnesses residing in New York are to be questioned by George F. Lewis of that city, under a commission issued by Judge Carroll of the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

Attorney Dodge asked that this commission be changed so that Lewis would have authority to bar the public and newspapermen, as published testimony might affect Gillette stock and might be damaging to the company.

Judge Pierce ruled that he could not alter a commission issued by Judge Carroll and said attorneys for both sides would have to see Judge Carroll.

Attorney William G. Thompson, representing the minority stockholders, objected to any change, because it might mean delay. Earlier he had agreed that Lewis might be instructed to take "reasonable precautions to bar newspapermen."

ELY ENDORSES BAKER FUND

In the presence of former Mayor Andrew J. Peters and other notables, Governor Ely today endorsed the Judge Baker Foundation and its $1,100,000 fund for building and endowment.

The ceremony took place in the executive office at the State House and the Governor characterized the foundation as "one of the most worth-while things in the state."

In addition to former Mayor Peters, who is general vice-chairman of the fund, Dr. William Healy and Dr. Augusts F. Bronner, directors, were present.

The endorsement followed announcement of a $50,000 gift to the fund by Charles Hayden of Hayden, Stone & Co., sent to Judge Frederic P. Cabot, president of the board of trustees of the foundation.

DENTIST URGES YEARLY RATE

New York, April 17 (AP)—Dental service at a flat rate of $25 a year is provided under a plan suggested by Dr. Alfred J. Asgis, secretary of the American Society of Stomatologists.

"It has been estimated that a great majority of the 80,000 dental practitioners are idle most of their time and that there exists about 60 per cent dental unemployment," he said, addressing a meeting of the society.

He proposed the pooling of dentists' time in co-operative offices.

The dentists, he said, will have to handle 3000 patients, and will thus be able to have an income of $9000 a year each.

Helen Twelvetrees Plans New Wedding

Los Angeles, April 17 (AP)—Helen Twelvetrees, screen actress, and Frank Woody, real estate broker, plan to be married again.

Their secret marriage in Reno, Nev., March 21, was revealed when the actress forgetfully wore a new wedding ring to work the day she returned from the honeymoon. The marriage was performed 10 days before her divorce from Clark Twelvetrees had become final.

"It was just an unfortunate misunderstanding of dates," Woody said last night. "We'll get married again in California."

Port of Boston News

By JAMES J. DELANEY

Reduction of grain rates to the port of Boston from Buffalo and other Lake Erie ports by five cents per 100 pounds has been petitioned for by the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Joining with other North Atlantic ports, the local group seeks to bring about a cut on bulk grain for export from Buffalo and other ports on the Great Lakes.

Notification was sent by R. N. Collyer, chairman of the Trunk Line Association, to Frank S. Davis, manager of the Maritime Association, of a conference to which all interested are invited which will be held in New York next Friday.

Railroads reduced rates on export grain from the lakes from Buffalo to the Atlantic seaboard to meet water rates.

If the petition is granted a greater volume of grain will move through the port of Boston to European ports.

FIRST ICE SIGHTED

First ice reported this season in the vicinity of the Grand Banks of Newfoundland is likely to cause the International Ice Patrol today, to start out for the locality to notify Atlantic shipping of the presence of ice. Since the sinking of the Titanic this patrol has been maintained by the United States at the expense of the nations of the world. A radio message was received by the Hydrographic Office at Washington which reported that one large iceberg and numerous small ice floes have been seen.

TRACHOMA FOUND

Trachoma, a dreaded eye malady, was discovered when the British steamer River Orontes, coming here from Syria, Greece and Oran, arrived here to discharge 750 tons of chrome ore and 50 tons of fibre. George Thesharakis, a fireman on board, was found by immigration quarantine doctors to be afflicted. He was sent to the United States Marine Hospital in Chelsea for treatment.

LADY HAWKINS

DR. SWEENEY SHIFTED

Dr. Alvin R. Sweeney, senior health officer attached to the United States Public Health Service at Gallups Island, has been sent to Carville, Louisiana, on a special health mission by orders from Washington. Dr. Alfred J. Nute is in charge of the immigration health service until his return.

BALTIC DUE MONDAY

Wireless reports from the White Star liner Baltic informed Boston officials of the line that she will dock here Monday morning at 8 o'clock. She comes here with passengers from Liverpool, Queenstown and Galway. She brings mail and freight. The Boston list includes 20 cabin, 24 tourist and 13 third class passengers.

MAYOR REPLIES TO HEARD

"The real estate interests of Boston persist in their cry for relief of real estate, but up to the present moment these interests have failed to give a helping hand in my attempts to relieve the burden on real estate," said Mayor James M. Curley today in reply to a statement by John Heard who took issue with the Mayor in the use of the term "real estate racketeering."

"I would suggest that Mr. Heard lead the movement to eliminate this evil of 'real estate racketeering' in this city," said the mayor, in concluding his statement.

The mayor said that at the hearing before the legislative committee on the question of returning a portion of the gasoline tax to municipalities not a single representative of the real estate interests appeared or showed any interest whatsoever in this worthwhile attempt to relieve the burden on real estate.

Incidentally, the mayor said Boston has always lived within its income.

Mary Lou Kissed by Lorry at Dance

By FAITH BALDWIN
Author of "The Office Wife," "Alimony" and Other Famous Novels

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Mary Lou Thurston, a beautiful and vivacious girl of the "bonus" type, orphaned by the death of her parents, lives with her aunt and uncle, Clara and Howard Sanderson. The former is private secretary to a publisher, and the latter an engineer. Larry Mitchell, energetic young newspaper reporter, is Mary Lou's pal. Sanderson gets a wonderful business chance to go to the Orient and take his wife as secretary. Mary Lou is to stay temporarily with Granama Jennings, Clara's mother. Larry is eager to marry Mary Lou and take care of her, but Mary Lou convinces him they are merely good pals and asks him to help her get a job. She applies at the Lorrimer's and is claimed by the son of the house as his war bride, named "Delight." Mary Lou qualifies as companion for Travers, who seems to find her different from his remembrance of his wife." The Lorrimers plan for the first gay Christmas since the war.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

IN THE CAB:

Wouldn't it be possible for us to take him out of there and send him at my expense to a sanitarium?" he wanted to know

"I spoke to the nurse about it. I can go back and see the head doctor. If there's a chance for a cure . . . we can get him well and find him a job . . . or something. He's a corker—Mac," said Lorrimer simply.

Mrs. Lorrimer felt tears rise in her throat and Mary Lou's eyes were dim. They hadn't seen him so eager, so taken out of himself—Mrs. Lorrimer, since his return, and Mary Lou in all her knowledge of him. Mac was—good medicine. And Lorrimer himself saw to it that Mac's Christmas was a bountiful one.

When they were home again and he was alone for a minute with Mary Lou, he said, quite simply:

"Thank you for making me go, Delight. I wouldn't have missed that meeting with Mac for millions. And how close I came to missing it."

"I didn't make you," she said, at once, "you—made yourself."

Christmas Came

So Christmas Day came. Cold and clear and perfect, the Christmas Day of a bright, tinseled card. For snow had fallen the night before and Westwood was ermined in white, soft and shining, the bare branches of the trees glittering with frost, with silver armor, and a pale golden sun shone bravely in the cloudless winter sky.

Larry arrived with absurd presents for Mary Lou and funny little remembrances for the others. And the big tree, which Mary Lou and Mrs. Lorrimer and Travers had trimmed the night before, blazed with lights and roped of gold and silver, shone with stars and guarded the heaps of packages, gayly papered, negligently tied, which lay at the base like strange and colorful fruit.

Mary Lou was more than taken care of. Mrs. Lorrimer had given her a dozen pretty, graceful little bits of lingerie and perfume, exquisite handkerchiefs, an etching she had once admired and, as a very special gift, a slim, lovely coat of silver broadtail, collared and cuffed in sable, a coat for a princess, which took Mary Lou's breath completely.

Ring for Delight

And from Lorrimer there were books and candy, stockings and a handbag in excellent sate, and one small square box from Cartier's.

Mary Lou opened it and her eyes widened and then flew to Mrs. Lorrimer's in appeal.

"Oh, Lorry!" said Mary Lou, helplessly.

With Larry watching, whistling aimlessly to himself, and under Mrs. Lorrimer's anxious eyes, Lorrimer crossed to Mary Lou.

B. U. Head Tells "Why Dry Law Should Be Obeyed"

ASKS IF BETTER WAY TO HANDLE RUM IS KNOWN

Pres. Marsh in Radio Speech Gives His Reasons for Backing Prohibition

President Daniel L. Marsh of Boston University, in a radio speech today, commended prohibition and cited four reasons for its obedience by American citizens.

"No matter what the political complexion of your town, or country, or commonwealth may be, a high ideal of American citizenship will prompt you to obey the law of the land. The high born take the lesser count when worsted in a bout," he said

The university head's radio speech was sponsored by the Law Enforcement League of Massachusetts.

Continuing, he said:

"If anybody can show a more excellent way of dealing with the commerce in beverage alcoholic liquors than by absolute prohibition, then I am for that way. But I would like to have you remember this law was not arrived at without long experimentation and profound consideration. It is a good law. It makes for temperance and sobriety. There is not one drunk person now where there used to be 100.

"However, one drunk today attracts more attention now than a hundred used to. If you will not obey the law because it is a law or because you are an American or because of the influence of your example, won't you at least obey it because fooling with drink is a bad thing."

"On December 17 I saw him at an automobile with her, and Irene told me that she was going to have a baby and that he was father of the child."

MERCURY AT 72 NEAR RECORD

Boston's touch of summer weather this morning changed to a gloomy atmosphere of dark clouds and a slight sprinkling of rain later in the day.

At 11:30 this morning the thermometer jumped to 72 degrees, one degree less than the 1918 record of 73 degrees for this date. At 1:30 the mercury dropped to 70 degrees, as the sky became overcast and a 10-mile an hour southwesterly wind rose.

The sudden change may be due to disturbance in North Dakota and Florida, which were being watched by weather officials.

Despite the present conditions the weatherman predicts fair weather tonight and Saturday, partly cloudy, with not much change in temperature, and moderate southwest to west winds.

HULTMAN CALLS CONRY'S BLAST 'BUFFOONERY'

Refuses to Be a Partner to It, Is the Police Commissioner's Only Comment

"Buffoonery!"

This was Police Commissioner Hultman's reply today to attacks by Traffic Commissioner Joseph A. Conry, who called him a "mattress voter" and a "Duxbury clam."

"I will not be a party to Mr. Conry's buffoonery," he said, after newspapermen had waited at his door for nearly two hours to see what answer he would have.

When informed of this terse pronouncement, Commissioner Conry leaned back in his swivel chair, smiled, and said.

RUMORS FLY

Rumors which were flying about police headquarters today regarding the future of both the police commissionership and the chairmanship of the traffic commission were ignored by both men.

Conry's attack came last night at a testimonial dinner to James H. Brennan of the Governor's Council in the crowded ballroom of the Hotel Bradford, where Conry had been introduced as the official representative of Mayor Curley.

At a meeting of the traffic commission yesterday, Conry had been ordered to cease issuing statements in the name of the commission, of which Hultman and several other city department heads are members.

PUTS "GAG" ASIDE

The supposed "gagging" of earlier in the day did not hamper his speech last night. With bitter sarcasm he averred the police commissioner, whose name he did not mention, was interested in affairs outside the city, accused him of fearing to enter a controversy, and declared a public official having such fear should get out of public life.

He charged the commissioner was not a Bostonian, but was a "mattress voter," who lived in the city for eligibility for political appointments, but preferred another center for the delights of social life.

"He is an alien of class, not race," Conry charged.

He then claimed the commissioner's chief interest was in Duxbury. He then went on to state that Duxbury was famous for its clams and that clams and silence are synonymous.

GIRL HELPS TO SAVE LIFE OF LODGER

One man was injured, another overcome by smoke and between 40 and 50 persons were driven to the street as a two-alarm fire damaged the two upper floors of a five-story brick apartment building at 144 Hemenway st., Back Bay, early today.

About 400 girl students of the New England Conservatory of Music, lodged in a dormitory across the street from the burning building, were aroused.

They crowded to the windows highly excited and many prepared to leave the dormitory. Firemen quickly got the blaze under control, however.

CARRIED DOWN LADDER

Paul Diliberto, 33, a lodger in the fourth floor of the burning building clambered to a window sill when he found himself trapped. Firemen ran up a ladder and rescued him. He suffered severe abrasions of both legs and was taken to City Hospital.

Many of the tenants were aroused by three first floor tenants.

These tenants, the Misses Theresa Benway, Dora Harrington and F. C. Daley were awakened by the smell of smoke and rushed through the building rousing others.

About 20 families in all were driven out, but were able to return after firemen had extinguished the flames. Mrs. Mary French was assisted out of the burning building by police and firemen.

The cause of the blaze has not been determined, according to police. Damage was estimated at $1800.

ANNA MAY WONG GUEST AT TEA

Gathered at the home of Arthur Johnson were a group of Boston's best-known social registerites to meet the young star, who has won such success both in this country and abroad.

As a result of the party it has become quite the social rage for debutantes and their escorts to inspect the workings of a theater from backstage as the guests of Miss Wong, and there is hardly a performance that does not find some society bud dropping into Miss Wong's dressing room for a chat between the acts.

Present at the tea were Louise Fessenden, Mrs. Alexander Steinert, Russell Codman, Jr., Anna May Wong, Charles Innes, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Lyman, Mr. and Mrs. Gerome Brush, Mr. and Mrs. McLeod, A. Duffy, Arthur Johnson and Pauline Shaw.

WHEN SAN FRANCISCO BURNED

Stock Fire Insurance Met Its Supreme Test

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO San Francisco was in flames. The fourth day of the fire revealed 28,188 ruined buildings, covering 520 city blocks.

Thousands were left homeless. Property destruction reached the enormous total of 350 million dollars.

This one fire swept away all underwriting profit earned by the Stock Fire Insurance companies since 1860 and 80 million dollars in addition.

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE companies paid more than 200 million dollars into the stricken city, and San Francisco stands today as a magnificent example of the restorative power of sound insurance and the courage and resourcefulness of its citizens.

Through succeeding years the Stock Fire Insurance companies comprising the National Board of Fire Underwriters have increased their efforts to make cities safer—protect life and property in all communities—reduce the possibility of San Francisco's experience being repeated anywhere.

PRESENT PLAN WOULD BE DISCARDED

'Financial Responsibility' Law Allows Companies to Fix Own Rates

A bill, substituting a "financial responsibility" law with a demerit system for the present compulsory automobile liability law, was reported favorably today in the Senate by the Joint Committee on Insurance.

A feature of the bill is a provision under which the rates to be charged the public would be fixed by the insurance companies and approved by the insurance commissioner.

The latter, under the present law, fixes the rates.

Under the proposed substitute law, an autoist, after an accident in which a judgment for personal injury is made, would be required to furnish financial proof to the board of inquiry of his ability to meet it.

Failure to prove responsibility would mean the suspension of his license. This responsibility would be in the nature of an insurance policy by cash or bond.

Insurance companies would be permitted under the demerit system to increase premiums of those with accident records 10, 25 and 50 per cent.

The change would take effect December 1 next.

Dissenters on the bill were Senators William F. Shanahan of Swampscott, Theodore R. Plunkett of Adams, and Reps. John P. Connolly, of Boston, William P. Corbett of Somerville, William Hudson of Gloucester, Francis D. Dailey of Boston, and Frank B. Coughlin of Norwood.

Those who voted for the bill in committee were Senators John B. Mackey of Quincy and Henry Parkman, Jr., of Boston; Reps. Eliot Wadsworth of Boston, Victor E. Rolando of Worcester, Rupert C. Thompson of Newton, Arthur T. Squires of Worcester, B. Farnham Smith of Concord and Marion C. Burrows of Lynn.

BIG STOCK DEAL BARED IN TRIAL

Hartford, Conn., April 17 (INS)—Frederick E. Kingston, broker, who with a number of his associates is being tried here on charges of fraud and conspiracy, once hoped to get 50,000 shares of Aetna Insurance stock from Patrick McGovern, former Aetna official, and have them applied to the portfolio of Kingston's Chonecticut Trading Corp. subsidiary.

Irving Le Beau, former Kingston salesman in Boston, told Judge McAvoy that Kingston thus explained the proposition to Robert H. O. Schultz, Boston lawyer, who was a Kingston customer. McGovern was then on his way home from Europe and the deal was to take place on his return. The stock was selling under $90 a share.

Schultz also was told that the subsidiary, organized two months before, had earned $8.63 a share in two months, according to Le Beau.

Schultz also was on the witness stand just before the noon recess after which he expected to be the State's chief witness.

Schultz lives at Dedham, Mass. He practised law in Boston from 1892 to 1903. He was prosecutor for Plymouth and Norfolk counties.

Schultz bought from Le Beau in December, 1929, 200 shares of Aetna stock, "and some other Hartford life and fire insurance stocks." Later he went to Hartford to visit the Kingston headquarters, traveling with Edwin J. Donnelly, the Kingston Boston manager, and Le Beau.

Schultz, trustee and manager of an estate, has a shrinkage of "from $60,000 to $100,000 in the portfolio of the estate." He desired to make it up. He came to Connecticut, according to Le Beau's testimony, to borrow money.

Wins Freedom

Mrs. Heather S. Percival of 37 Berman st., Mattapan, was awarded a divorce in Suffolk Probate Court today. She was also awarded custody of a 10-year-old daughter and alimony of $8 a week.

WIFE DIVORCES S. H. PERCIVAL

Testifying she found her husband living with another woman in New London, Conn., Mrs. Heather S. Percival, of Berman st., Dorchester, was granted a divorce in Suffolk Probate court today, from Stafford H. Percival.

She was also given custody of her daughter, Phyllis Marie, 10, and $8 a week alimony. The case was uncontested.

Mrs. Percival testified that in 1930, after her husband had been transferred by his employers to New London, she went down to pay him a visit.

"A woman in negligee opened the door," said the witness, "and when I asked her who she was, she said she was Mrs. Percival. In a short time my husband returned and told me he did not want to live with me any more."

Norman Jordan of New London corroborated Mrs. Percival's testimony regarding the "other woman." He said Percival introduced this woman as his wife and lived with her.

VANISHED JUST LIKE THE DEW

After 34 years of apparently happy married life, Charles Hamilton walked out of his Bunker Hill st., Charlestown home never to return, his wife, Mrs. Mary B. Hamilton testified today in Suffolk Probate court.

Mrs. Hamilton, who is 63, said she had never heard from him again. She was granted a divorce on the ground of desertion.

The couple were married in 1891 in Ruth, Me., she testified, and were living in Bunker Hill st. when on April 21, 1925, Hamilton walked out of her life.

"I never was able to explain his desertion," she told the court. "There was no reason for it that I could see."

Beacon Hill Woman Robbed by Youths

Jane Anderson of 104 Mt. Vernon st. reported to the police of the Joy st. station that, while walking on West Cedar st. toward her home about midnight, she was seized and robbed of her handbag, containing $10.

She said her assailants were two young men, who, after taking the bag, fled.

LAUNDRY GOES UP IN SMOKE

For once John C. Young didn't demand check today as firemen dashed into his Chinese laundry shop on Bulfinch st., West End, and started tossing out the bundles.

Smoke was pouring from the shop and from the windows of tenements in the four-story brick building when Engine 6 and Ladder 1 reached the scene.

It was the stillest kind of an alarm, for one of the laundrymen simply ran over to the new Bowdoin sq. fire station and pointed to the smoke.

Occupants of the suites above the laundry dashed out and firemen rose to the occasion and made a quick cleanup of the blaze. Damage was estimated at $100 and the cause was set down as careless use of cigarettes. Atty. William R. Scharton is listed owner of the building.

TODAY'S TRUE STORY

RUNAWAY LOVE

The Secret Found Out

AS SHE and Harry entered the lobby of the hotel, Eleanor drew her coat closer about herself, seeking to hide her face in its collar. Suppose someone should recognize her!

She shivered slightly at the thought and glanced hastily about the lobby. Harry was at the registration desk, taking a pen from the clerk. At Eleanor's feet lay a shiny overnight bag.

"Be sure and bring a bag with you or they won't let us register at the hotel," Harry had told her.

She had slipped it out of the house through a rear door and now here she was, waiting and trembling, as Harry signed the register for them as man and wife.

"Mr. and Mrs. Harry Newlin"—he had already written it and it was too late to back out now. They had agreed that he might as well sign his own name.

"Maybe they can put me in jail if I sign a false name," he had said, "so it's better to play safe and sign my right name. Nobody will spot it. Anyway, we'll have to take a chance."

Harry was coming toward her now, accompanied by a bell boy. The boy bent to pick up her bag.

"Come on, dear," said Harry.

It was night, deep night outside as they went up in the brilliantly lighted elevator. Eleanor kept her eyes cast down. She dared not even so much as glance at Harry while the thought of meeting the bell boy's eyes was terrible. She wondered if he knew—if he could guess. She realized her cheeks were flaming and buried her face even deeper in the fur collar of her coat.

She seemed to move automatically as they followed the bellboy along the carpeted corridor to their room. The day before, when Harry had first proposed this sweet, mad plan, it had seemed so easy. Just the two of them—away from all others—together.

Her steps agged even though she knew it was now too late, that she had to go through with it. They were registered as man and wife and in a few minutes they would be alone.

Eleanor took heart at that thought. It was the bell boy, the stranger in the paradise, who made her nervous. Once he had closed the door behind him and he was alone with Harry only love would remain.

And she did love him, she was sure of that. She knew it. She had loved him almost from the first time she saw him, as he had loved her. And what did it matter that she had everything and he had almost nothing. Nothing except the power to make her happy. What did it matter that her parents had tried to separate them, that they had pleaded his comparative poverty? That didn't mattered except their love, and her parents having refused, this was the only alternative.

Now, after tonight, they would have to recognize him.

The bellboy stopped at a door, opened it and snapped on the lights. Eleanor pressed close to Harry as they entered. She was certain that the bell boy had grinned to himself as he carefully placed her overnight bag on a little stool.

It seemed ages to Eleanor while he fussed with the windows and shades. She wanted to speak to Harry, to say anything at all just to show that she was at ease and wasn't inwardly quaking at the thought of what she was doing. But she couldn't speak. The muscles of her throat were taut and aching.

"Thank you sir."

It was the bell boy who spoke. He was pocketing the coin that Harry gave him. He left now and closed the door behind him.

For a moment Eleanor and Harry stood as he had left them.

Then she raised her eyes to his. He moved closer and held out his arms. She nestled within them, burying her flaming face against his coat.

With gentle words he soothed her. She felt herself relaxing as she took off her hat and tossed it on a chair. Then she yielded to his kisses.

Suddenly she pushed him aside.

"I forgot to tell you," she said. "I told mother I was spending the night with Harriett Lane. Do you think she'll call up to find out? I didn't dare tell Harriet, of course."

"She won't call," said Harry. He again took her in his arms as he quieted her fears, assuring her that no one would think that there was no danger of his name being recognized on the hotel register.

The next morning there was a discreet knock on the door of their room. Harry answered it and Eleanor could hear him telling some one to come back later. A newspaper, furnished by the hotel to all its guests, was handed to him.

"Just be paid," he explained to Eleanor.

Idly he opened the paper.

"Good lord," Eleanor heard him say. "They've found out about it."

Excitedly he handed her the paper, pointing to a story on the front page. Eleanor read:

"Miss Eleanor Spring, heiress to the Seabrieg millions, eloped yesterday with Harry Newlin, young attorney. The two attempted to keep their marriage a secret and . . ."

Eleanor looked up from the paper.

"But what does it matter now?" she cried.

Milk Best Food for Baby

By DR. COPELAND.

IT HAS LONG been recognized that milk is an essential food for infants and growing children. Indeed, it is the most perfect food known. It is almost the only substitute for mother's milk.

The amount of fat in cow's milk is about the same as that found in human milk. Cow's milk contains less sugar and has a harder curd to it for cow's reason that in the feeding of infants water is added to thin the curd. Since the addition of water dilutes the fat, it is usually necessary to add top-milk or cream to enrich the mixture.

Dr. Copeland

The baby requires more milk sugar than is found in cow's milk. The percentage of sugar is lessened too, by this addition of water. For these reasons some kind of sugar must be added to the mixture.

These proportions, or "formulas," as they are called, vary at different ages and with different children. No one mixture will suit every child or every age.

One must never assume that a baby cannot take cow's milk. If the feedings do not agree with the infant, it is not because it is cow's milk, but because the proportions of the additions to the milk are wrong. It may be necessary to diminish the amount of fat, sugar or curd, or it may have to be increased. It may require more of one substance and less of another. This can be ascertained only by watching the progress of the child.

Fortunately, most communities are supplied with pasteurized milk. Unless it is known absolutely to be pure, no raw cow's milk should be given the infant. Contrary to a common belief, pasteurization does not reduce the nourishing value of milk. It does safeguard the infant in that it removes all possible contamination by germs.

Whatever properties are damaged by pasteurization may be restored by giving orange, tomato or prune juice.

What's in Fashion in Shoes

By AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, April 17—Are fashionable shoes plain or trimmed? Decidedly they are trimmed.

But—and this is an important but—they're trimmed so subtly and discreetly that often, when you first look at them, you think they're not trimmed at all.

And how does this happen? Well—let's look at some fashionable shoe types and the way they're trimmed.

Notice how the perforations are put on. Not in wild, crazy designs, but following the natural lines of the shoe. Around the top. Outlining the tip and quarters.

Dressier Pump

This next is a dressier pump. The trimming is a narrow band of contrasting leather around the top and across the side and an applique of trimmed bow cop.

Neat, isn't it? Not a bit conspicuous, yet definitely a trimmed, dressy shoe.

Now let's examine some oxfords. You're going to see lots of oxfords worn with suits this season. The first one is obviously a walking oxford. And like the walking pump, its trimming consists of perforations and underlay.

And they follow the natural lines of the shoe, just as did the perforations in the pump.

But here's a more formal oxford. One that looks well with most any kind of daytime costume. It's cut lower and ties with two pairs of eyelets instead of three or four, as the higher-cut walking oxford ties.

Next we've shown a walking shoe with a strap. You almost wouldn't call that trimmed, would you? But it is.

It's trimmed by combining two kinds of leathers, one in the tip and quarter and around the collar; the other in the main body of the shoe.

Step-in Pump

And last is a step-in pump—almost like an opera but cut a little higher in the front. How is it trimmed? With just a narrow piping of contrasting leather along the front quarter and a neat, small bow that's piped the same way.

Now that we've looked at these six fashionable shoes, what do we find about trimming? Several things.

(1) That fashionable shoe trimmings follow the natural lines of the shoe instead of making crazy patterns all over it. They outline the tip, quarters or upper edge of the shoe.

(2) That fashionable shoe trimmings include perforations, narrow strippings and pipings, applitques, combinations of contrasting leather, bows and buckles.

(3) That when two different colors are combined they are colors that blend harmoniously instead of contrasting sharply.

(4) And above all that these trimmings are simple, discreet and not at all conspicuous when fashionably used.

Rinses Add to Blonde Hair Beauty

By MISS HUDDLESTON.

THERE ARE so many different types of rinses for blonde hair that it is almost impossible to decide which one will be best suited to the individual tint which distinguishes one shade from another. However, I can set down the various types of rinses for you and then you can use your own judgment in which will be very good. I'm sure, if you experience it properly!

Huddleston

Just because you belong to the large group of women with blonde hair, don't jump into one rinse direction until you have decided just what shade of blonde hair you have. Are you a golden blonde? No? Then, perhaps you belong to the pale blonde group. Or, it's barely possible that your blonde hair is beginning to darken a little, which places you in the drab blonde group. In any event, I know that you can find a rinse among those listed below which will bring new beauty to your hair.

Camomile tea brightens both blonde and light brown hair. Henna adds a reddish cast. Bluing takes the glint out of either rinse. Peroxide lightens the hair. Remember those four things and then mix your rinse to suit your need.

Dull, drab, lifeless blonde hair frequently needs nothing at all except a weak camomile rinse. If, after using it once, you find it makes the hair too glittery, simply rinse the camomile off the hair; make up a new bath and add a few drops of hair bluing to the original solution.

If you want to lighten drab blonde hair add one teaspoonful of peroxide to one pint of camomile water. If you want to give a reddish cast to drab blonde hair add two tablespoonfuls of henna liquid to one pint of camomile water.

If you have the true golden blonde hair it can be made more golden in color by finishing off the shampoo with a camomile tea rinse. If the shade of gold is too dark to suit your fancy, add one teaspoonful of peroxide to one pint of camomile water.

If the golden tone is too bright, add a few drops of bluing to one pint of camomile water and use this as the final rinse after shampooing.

Camomile flowers (also spelled chamomile) are natural herbs and are used as a tonic for the system as well as for the surface beautifying of the hair. Therefore, have no fear that harmful results will result from its use. When using henna for rinses be sure to buy the real henna leaves, which also are herbs and harmless.

Make-Believe

side and stood with her under the many colored lights of the tall, lovely tree.

"It takes no promise," he said, low; it rivets no fetters. But you don't wear the other ring—any more, Delight."

"Other ring!" she whispered, unconscious that she spoke for his ears alone.

"The seal ring. We—didn't have time for any other," he said.

Her heart sank, she was suddenly blackly depressed. He had married Delight Hartford the ring with a seal ring. His own, she imagined.

Well, she'd let him think she'd been awfully poor after the "death" of the cousin!

"It—had to go," she managed to say.

He nodded, thinking he understood, but wondering why . . . surely it hadn't been valuable, couldn't have brought very much! But his heart constricted with pity for her, the hard, difficult times she must have been through and of which she was so reluctant to speak.

"Then," he begged, "for the sake of Christmas-time, will you wear this one . . . for . . . me?"

She loved it! It was beautiful. It was perfect. She slipped it on her finger, her eyes turned from his suddenly radiant face to Mrs. Lorrimer's. Margaret nodded, quietly.

Larry broke into what he fondly hoped was a carol and the tension was over, the moment had passed.

Later Jenny Wynne came over with half a dozen youngsters, to demand to see all the presents, to nibble at candy and fruit and to drink egg nogg, the old-fashioned kind that you don't drink after all, but eat with a spoon. And the moment he laid eyes upon Jenny, Larry's fate was sealed.

She was as slim and as curved as a birch tree. She had flyaway yellow curls and deep brown eyes. Her chin was pointed and so was her nose. She was an adorable little person and she was nineteen years old.

"I'm a goner!" groaned Larry to Mary Lou. "How much money has she?"

"Millions, my poor dear! Her father is Wynne, of American Steel!"

Larry was crushed. But not for long.

"Even a steel king might welcome a rising young novelist as a son-in-law," he announced. "And I have three chapters written, Mary Lou, something tells me I will spend a lot of time in Westmill, Connecticut."

At midnight they turned back the rugs and turned on the radio and danced. Larry and Jenny floated about the floor in a series of graceful meanderings and brilliant wise-cracks. Mary Lou standing by Lorrimer, watched them. Now was her opportunity to rid him completely of any maudlin he might still harbor.

"Larry's gone absolutely mad over Jenny Wynne," she whispered. "And he's acting all gloomy because he's a poor reporter and she's one of these heiresses you read about."

"Jenny has enough for two," answered Lorrimer, light hearted. "Larry wouldn't care for that arrangement," remarked Mary Lou.

"Good for Larry. Well, we'll have to give him a hand up . . . although playing Cupid is rather out of my line. Delight, I've not danced since—since a night you may remember. Shall we—try again?"

She gave herself into his arms, conscious that Margaret and Doctor Mathews, who was present were watching. Conscious too that Jenny and her gang were also observant, amazed but too well bred to show it.

"Great heavens," said Jenny to Larry, "he hasn't danced since the war! Wonders will never cease! That girl's a darling, though. He's in love with her, of course . . . who could help it? Does it break your heart—you know her pretty well, don't you?" and she looked at him from under curling lashes in an entirely wicked fashion.

"No," Larry answered, steering that armful of mischief around the room, "no, it doesn't break my heart. Yes, I know her very well. No, of course he couldn't help being in love with her any more than I can help being in love with you."

"You're a fast worker!" commented Jenny, with admiration.

The air music was lively, the air music was processional. Mary Lou found dancing easy. Larry danced well—he hadn't forgotten. He danced her cleverly under the mistletoe which was caught with a bright ribbon to the gilt-edged crystal chandelier, stopped her there, an instant . . . and kissed her . . .

Then the music went on and the dancing. Mary Lou's knees were weak . . . were shaking under her. Margaret had seen that kiss. Mathews, too, and perhaps the others. That didn't matter however. And Larry had said no word. What did matter was the intolerable pressure at her heart, the sense of faintness, the sudden piercing knowledge.

Let Him Be First to Speak

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Please advise me. I'm one of those near-children in their mid-teens who write to you. I'm 26 years old and in love for the first time in my life. I meet the man (he's 30) every day in business. He has never been married and is rather shy with women. He lingers around my desk quite a bit, but has never called on me or asked to take me out. I'm thinking about telling him I love him. Do you think it would be advisable? STILL DOUBTFUL.

Dear Doubtful: Please don't! It's only in very modern novels and short stories that women get away with that sort of thing. When it comes to asking a woman to marry him, even the most timid man has enough of his great - great - great - and - then-some-grandfather in his inner consciousness to do his own proposing, even though a girl may render valuable first aid. Invite the man to call, and if you don't want it to look so pointed, ask enough friends to make up a card game. Or, have a nice little supper afterwards—but don't, I beg of you, propose.

How Shall She Invite Him?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A few weeks ago I met a very nice looking young man at a party and I should like to invite him to call on me, particularly as my father knows and likes him very much. Would it be proper to write him a note or phone and invite him to the house?

ROSEBUD.

Dear Rosebud: Either would be proper, but perhaps it would be better to phone him as it would seem less formal.

Correct Form for Gifts of Bride

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I am having a church wedding and reception afterwards. Is it my father's place to have cars to take the guests to the reception, or is it up to the guests to get over the best way they can?

2. What is the correct time to give the bridesmaids and ushers their gifts?

3. Who pays for the use of the church?

READER.

1. The guests supply their own conveyance to take them from the church to the place in which the reception is to be held.

2. At any time before the wedding. If the bride gives a party to her attendants, usually a luncheon, and gives the gifts to them at that time, and the groom gives gifts to his attendants at his bachelor dinner. If no parties of the kind are given, the presents may be given at any time.

3. The parents of the bride, who are the hosts of the occasion, pay for the use of the church, as they pay for all other expenses connected with the wedding, except the very few which are the obligations of the groom.

Don't Take Coffee—If You Don't Want It

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Very often when I have gone to parties my hostess serves coffee as a beverage. As I do not take coffee, I am frequently embarrassed as I am usually the only person at the party who does not take any. When I refuse coffee, am I being rude?

J.

There isn't a reason in the world why you should feel embarrassed. You aren't rude in not take any coffee . . . It would be highly ridiculous if you did take it, since you do not wish it. Just be very sensible about it, and very casual, and put from your mind any thought of even need for embarrassment.

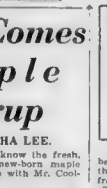
Now Comes Maple Syrup

By MARTHA LEE.

THOSE WHO know the fresh, sweet taste of new-born maple syrup will rejoice with Mr. Coolidge, who said recently and joyously:

"The sugar season is coming. It is time to bring out the sap buckets and the great pans. The dripping sap will make pleasant music, mingling with the cry of bluejays and the complaining of the squirrels. And the air will be filled with the incomparable flavor of the new maple syrup."



Martha Lee

Can't you just smell and taste it?

Yet the old methods are fast passing away, and the charm of that scene in the sugar-flowing district with sap buckets and great pans is being fast displaced by the pipe line which carries thes yrup with infinitely less labor to its first consuming point. So has the method of distributing the syrup changed. Now the very finest of mapie syrup is canned in hermetically sealed sanitary cans so that it reaches the consumer with every bit of that fresh, mapely, "incomparable" flavor.

CORN CAKES

Beat 2 eggs well, add ½ cup sour milk and ¼-teaspoon soda and one 8-ounce can corn, Sift together 1 cup flour, ½-teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder and add. Add 1 tablespoon melted butter. Fry in small cakes on a hot griddle. Serve with maple syrup.

IF THE raincoat is too long for the child, fasten the hem with adhesive tape the desired length. Then, as the youngster grows, the raincoat may be let down accordingly.

A painter's brush will be found useful in removing dust from rattan furniture.

When windows stick and are hard to put up, wax the cord thoroughly and they will raise and lower easily.

If you cover your recipe cards with transparent shelf paper, grease spots are very easily wiped clean without smudging the ink.—Mrs. E. I. Bordeau, 466 Groveland st., Haverhill.

Gold Stocks' Boom Is Spur to Speculation

Securities Jobbers Ready to Take Advantage of Public Interest

—By B. C. Forbes—

New York, April 17—An old-timer in Wall st., who has been interested in gold stocks, supplies the following for readers of this column.

B. C. Forbes

"A regular old - fashioned gold boom has been gradually gaining momentum in the securities market.

"Wall st. is rapidly reaching the boiling state in the renewed excitement over gold mining stocks. Canada already has established the boiling stage, with rampant speculation in practically all gold-mining shares.

"One gold stock on the New York Stock Exchange has risen almost 500 per cent from its lowest price of 1930. On other exchanges, where gold-mining shares are more numerous, advances of 100 per cent or more in price have been very common.

"Thus far, the public has become involved only in a small way. But all signs point to rabid participation unless the teachings of the past are heeded.

"Sponsors of the present gold stock boom proclaim the experience of the past—that such stocks rise in the 'final stage of bear markets.' They also point to the gold shortage throughout the world.

"In respect to the latter, incidentally, it is estimated that possibly one billion dollars economy in the need for gold has been effected merely through the decline of commodity prices.

"But gold stocks have a lure greater perhaps than any other single cause of security. The ready market for the metal, with the unwavering price guaranteed by all the principal countries of the world, the preciousness of the metal all combine to exaggerate the speculative instinct in gold mining securities.

"As a matter of record, only a very small proportion of gold mining enterprises prove successful. Of course, there have been occasional bonanzas with their staggeringly huge profits, and these serve to whet the appetite of the gambling public.

"So great a public speculation apparently is anticipated—or will be invited—that at least half a dozen Canadian brokerage houses have been rumored of late to be planning offices in New York. Hundreds of gold mining stocks are listed on the Canadian exchanges.

"It is also rumored from London that an 'investment trust' to consist entirely of South African gold mining shares is under contemplation.

"The public, apparently, will be given every inducement to become embroiled in the gold stock boom.

"It is to be expected, of course, that the stock-jobbers, the gentry who utilize such periods of public excitement to peddle worthless securities, will be actively on the job. Already there are distinct signs of renewed life among shady circles.

"Difficulties confronting gold-mining companies are numerous, and successful and profitable production is extremely limited. There are a few companies whose record even as mining enterprises entitle them to investment status, but the great majority of gold mining enterprises are just as speculative as any other mining operation."

BONDHOLDERS LOSE BY BEING CARELESS

By FRANK H. MELOON

Bond holders are frequent losers through sheer carelessness. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon calls attention to the fact that there is a fund of $23,811,100 in the treasury belonging to holders of 2½ per cent notes which matured March 15 and which have been redeemed. Interest is being lost.

Failure to redeem the notes is believed due to confusion, as the treasury has called series A and B of this issue while series C still pays interest. Unredeemed notes are in series B. Many Liberty bonds still are unredeemed.

Every time American Telephone issues its valuable "rights" hundreds of holders allow their certificates to expire for a total loss because of failure to exercise them or convert them into cash.

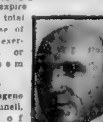
Capt. Eugene E. O'Donnell, president of Eastern Steamship, the world's largest coastwise water carrier, this week issues a report that should, as a whole, prove cheerful reading for stockholders. Two new vessels, costing about $7,000,000, are being added to the Boston company's fleet. Capt. O'Donnell sees probability of still greater success for Eastern Steamship when these are added to its sturdy revenue earners.



Capt. Eugene E. O'Donnell

Capt. Dollar, who began his nautical career by launching a sailboat on the Forth and Clyde Canal in Scotland, expressed before the Boston Chamber of Commerce his belief that the day of ships in passing slowly on a profitable earning Goodyear, made his formal announcement that his company would establish experimental service across the Atlantic in the summer of 1932.

Before the air fleet gets established, it is likely Capt. O'Donnell's fleet, too, will have been put in service. Capt. O'Donnell, by the way, comes of old New England seafaring lineage. He is one of those who really love the tang of the Atlantic.

State Street heard today that the early retirement of James A. Farrell, president of U. S. Steel, through the age limit is expected.

Boston News Bureau today says it is regarded as not unlikely that the Massachusetts and possibly New Hampshire members of the New England governors' railroad committee will find in favor of a merger of the Boston & Maine with the New Haven.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Concensus of Wall Street opinion today is that the market is heavily oversold, and that an important rally should be staged around current levels at the expense of the bears.

Atlantic Refining Weak Among Oils

Atlantic Refining was the weak spot in the oils today, although its loss was not large despite publication of the first quarterly report which showed a deficit of $2,162,000 against a profit of $1,124,300 in the first quarter of 1930.

Du Pont Heavily Sold by Bears

Du Pont was heavily sold by the bears for a time today with a resultant 3-point recession. Market news after citing this issue was rather vague on other weak spots, the large ownership in General Motors, which is reporting consolidated sales gains and the prospect of doing rather well the rest of 1931.

Electric Auto-Lite Is Weak Specialty

Talk of "pool distress" was heard as Electric Auto-Lite quickly tumbled $6 a share today. This issue however, has a way of staging smart rallies from time to time.

Good Buy Orders for "Blue Chips"

Industrial blue chips today had the benefit of a fairly good volume of over-night buying orders, based on the improvement in certain divisions of American business. Standard Oil of New Jersey, General Electric and U. S. Steel all had fair early gains as a result.

Dividend Paying Rails Are Bought

Best demand in the rail list today was seen for Chesapeake & Ohio, Pennsylvania and other established dividend payers.

Waldorf Earns at a High Rate

Waldorf System shares were firm on the New York Stock Exchange today. Company has made a good start this year, turning in record earnings of 70 cents a share for the first quarter. Net almost covered dividend requirements for the first six months. The stock is on a 10% annual basis.

Beatrice Creamery's Earnings Good

Beatrice Creamery earnings last year had about as was anticipated in unofficial reports and quarters are viewed as explaining the quiet accumulation which has been evident in the stock several times this year. Net profits were $3,389,373, equal, after preferred dividends, to $7.12 a share on the 372,241 shares of common stock outstanding. In the previous year $7.21 a share was shown on only 270,395 shares then outstanding. The company's revenues have shown stability and this is one of the factors mentioned by those optimistic on the future

New Haven's First Quarter

Although New Haven, like other railroads, felt stiffen of the business recession, there are many who insist the company will stage a strong comeback once conditions have improved and New Englanders feel trade conditions here are growing better. Estimates have been heard of about 80 cents a share having been earned on the common stock in the first three months of this year. Increase close to the road are anticipating declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share.

Allied Chemical's Prospects Noted

For several months there has been considerable talk of the future competition in the market for nitrates throughout the world, with special attention being attracted to the situation by the fact that Chilean producers were forced to adopt some drastic measures in connection it is being pointed out that Allied Chemical, the leading producer of synthetic nitrates, will be able to show a fair profit under normal trade conditions.

Kroger Grocery's Better Showing

Kroger Grocery is making a better showing than most of the retail store chain companies. Sales for the four weeks ended March 28 showed a reduction of only 1.8 per cent, which is considered unusually small, when the lower retail prices are taken into consideration. It is also true the company has fewer outlets now. This would indicate that sales per store have been higher in both volume and dollar value. There has been evidence of good buying recently.

Buying in United Electric Coal

Quiet buying which has made its appearance in United Electric Coal at times in the past few weeks is believed to be due to the various steps taken by the new management to aid the organization. It is said that several new contracts since the beginning of this year have been showing improvement. Officials have secured new contracts with railroad consumers which will help future results.

"L" ISSUE IS SOLD AT NEW LOW FOR YEAR

Boston Elevated second preferred was worked to a new low for the year in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange. The common was advanced a point.

The list as a whole was mixed, changes ranging from fractions to around 3 points. New Haven and Pond Creek Pocahontas each dipped to new low figures.

Boston Personal Property gained 1½ and Bigelow Sanford preferred was a point higher. Boston & Maine A stamped advanced over 2 points. Extension in time has been granted on about 80 cents a share having been earned on the common stock in the first three months of this year. Increase close to the road are anticipating declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share.

JUNE McCLOY SIGNED FOR 'THE GOLD-DIGGERS' SERIES OF TWO-REELERS

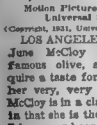
NEW STAR ON PATHE LOT

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor for Universal Service
(Copyright, 1931, Universal Service, Inc.)

LOS ANGELES, April 17—June McCloy is like the famous olive, after you acquire a taste for her you like her very, very much. Miss McCloy is in a class by herself in that she is the only woman I have ever heard whose voice is as deep as a man's. She is tall, gawky but with a very pretty face.

RKO-Pathe must feel that the world is going to accept her for she has been signed on a long term contract to make a series of two reel pictures to be known as "The Gold-diggers" series.

This company hopes for eventual stardom for Miss McCloy. She is certainly unusual enough to create interest, and there is something in not imitating anyone else



Louella O. Parsons

I AM laughing. I cannot help it. Samuel Goldwyn has engaged Charlotte Greenwood to play opposite Eddie Cantor in "Palmy Days." Can't you see the tall Charlotte stepping right over the little Eddie? Well, Sam, I've got to say for you it was an inspiration to get Charlotta for Eddie's leading lady. I don't know whether it was your idea or Eddie's, but whoever thought of it first can come forward and take a bow. Miss Greenwood's success in "Parlor Bedroom and Bath," opposite Buster Keaton, probably had a little to do with her selection for "Palmy Days." She did so well with Buster that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is looking for stories to star her in.

IF NORMA TAUROG would only talk about his direction of Jackie Cooper and Bobby Coogan in "Skippy" what interesting stuff we'd tell, to what lengths he went to make Bobby Coogan cry, and how he had to work to get the kids to emote. But Mr. Taurog is a good director and he merely says, "the children are talented." Anyway "Skippy" was a swell picture and it is only right Mr. Taurog should be given "Huckleberry Finn" to direct. Jackie Coogan, Junior Durkin, Jackie Searl and Mitzi Green are the youngsters who will have the leading roles. Sam Mitz who did such a good job on "Skippy" will write the story in collaboration with William Slavens McNutt and Grover Jones. Well if it's half as good as "Skippy," it will do a good business.

FIVE YEARS ago Paramount started a school for actors. Graduating from the school were Buddy Rogers, Thelma Todd, Josephine Dunn, Roland Drew and others. They were the pick of the lot and Buddy has made enough money for Paramount for them to realize that the school was worth while. Universal is now about to establish the same sort of school for screen apprenticeship. Arthur Uncer was sent out on a tour to select youngsters who would come here on their vacations and take a course at Universal City. The first arrivals, Dan Davies and Kent Morgan, University students, began their course this week.

A WHISPER here and an announcement there tells us that Walter Wanger has been signed for a part in "Spent Bullets," the Richard Barthelmess picture. Charles Winninger is also on the First National lot playing in "Right Nurse." Josephine Lovett did such a good piece of work on Ruth Chatterton's picture, "Stepdaughters of War," she has been asked to put her name on the dotted line at Paramount. She will write stories exclusively for the company. Alan Mowbray, who has had a run of historical pictures at First National, appearing "George Washington" and "Alexander Hamilton," will play the heavy in "The Honor of the Family," with Bebe Daniels.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: BESSIE LOVE getting a rest ovation at the Brown Derby after her appearance in her play. LILA LEE deluged with flowers from friends who are delighted over her convalescence. GARY COOPER and LUPE VELEZ dancing together in the Blossom Room, belying rumors of a rift. ROBERT MONTGOMERY being pointed out by out-of-town tourists, as he walked to the lobby of the Roosevelt. JOAN BLONDELL lunching with LILYAN TASHMAN at the Brown Derby. BEATRICE JOY getting a big reception in Boston where local papers report she is making a hit in a stage play. The WILLIAM FAWCETTS entertaining CAPT ROSCOE FAWCETT with a tea at the Roosevelt. BUDDY ROGERS, EVELYN BRENT, MARY PICKFORD, JOSE CRESPO, RICHARD CROMWELL, DOLORES DEL RIO among those present. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

"When Naples Sings" on Fine Arts Bill

"When Naples Sings," an Italian talking and singing film, will be the next picture at the Fine Arts. The story of the film is laid in that Italian beauty spot, Naples. The gay carnivals Mt. Vesuvius, the delightful folk songs, as only these natives know how to sing them, are seen and heard. This is the first picture taken in that most picturesque city and will give to many a satisfaction that can only be supplanted by an actual trip to Naples.

MISS DUNCAN IS THRIFTY

Rosetta Duncan of the famous Duncan Sisters, the little stars of "Topsy and Eva" renown and who appears in person at the RKO Keith-Boston tomorrow, has two homes and two careers.

She and her sister own and maintain a beautiful home in Los Angeles County, Cal., and have another in White Plains, N. Y., with servants motor cars and all the other usual flixings of a well-to-do residence. And she is heavily interested in one of the largest automobile accessory sales concerns in the country. Thus she not only is successful at home-making, but pursues stage and screen careers and is in business at one and the same time.

Miss Duncan is among the most thrifty of theatrical celebrities, saving at least half of her income every year and investing the savings in securities. So strong is the spirit of thrift, that even the glorious run of her recent musical comedy success "Topsy and Eva," "caught the fever" and began "putting away" $5 a week.

CARNERA TO BE AT HOWARD

The great Italian heavyweight champion, Primo Carnera, will be the star card at the Old Howard all next week. He is well considered the most powerful man in the ring today, and many think that he will soon be heavyweight champion of the world. He will be assisted in his act by sparring partners. His engagement at the Old Howard will begin at the midnight show next Sunday night.

The start of the ring will at once be a personal appearance at the Howard, Sunday at the midnight show Sunday, and also on Monday and Friday nights of next week.

Emmett Moore Will Show Irish Films Here

GARY COOPER IN ROLE OF GANGSTER

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

ANY CHICAGO COMMITTEE dead-in-earnest on any plan to clean up the gangsters, should take the tip from "City Streets," new film at the Metropolitan. All they have got to do is to ask Paramount for the loan of Gary Cooper, and the lanky Montanan will do the rest. On the basis of his work in the photoplay, he may be guaranteed sure-fire cure for all racketeering ills of any big city. He should be able to do these things:

For Mr. Cooper steps out of the usual run of roles for him, and, like the he-man he is, he makes things burn in crookdom, once he is weaned away from honest paths to make money in the bear-running "game." His "sweetie," taking the "rap" for her step-father, changes heart on her earlier effort to get Mr. Cooper into the racket; in prison she is not only remorseful, but fearful of his safety among her former pals.

When at last the iron gates clank behind her, she finds herself pursued by Paul Lukas, the gang chief, and a gentleman who nonchalantly "bumps off" all rivals. That lets Mr. Cooper prove the superiority of his training in the "Westerns" to the shooting of the city chaps. And he makes things interesting, particularly toward the finish, in a dare-devil motor ride to victory and perfect happiness in love.

"City Streets," in the main, is a melodramatic medley of about all the features of a myriad gangland movies that have crowded the screen these past months. Its saving graces are superb photography, excellent acting by Mr. Lukas and William Boyd (the stage graduate into the films) and Guy Kibbee, and generally good direction by Rouben Mamoulian. The latter does a grand job in stimulating audience interest in the auto ride at the end. Mr. Mamoulian has also brought a spirit of gaiety into the melodrama, as if he were taking delight in bidding farewell to gangster tales on the screen.

The picture introduces Sylvia Sidney, once mentioned as the girl who was to be groomed for Clara Bow's niche. We have never been a Bow enthusiast; but we may say that Miss Bow need not worry about any of her laurels. Miss Sidney has much to do before she can measure her fame by the size of her fanmail.

ON STAGE, there is a Boris Petroff revue, "Parlor Sports," starring Lulu McConnell. Others featured are Fields, Shelton and Fields, Johnson & Rio, and Dorothea Berke Girls.

Next week the Met will have George Arliss in "The Millionaire."

WHOLE STAFF OF STORE IN FILM

A department store in full operation, a tailor shop, with tailors, pressers, and repairers working furiously and, William Haines industriously pressing pants, help along the fun in "A Tailor Made Man," which opens at Loew's State today.

The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, based on the stage hit, is a romance of big business. Haines starts as an assistant in a tailor's shop, and rises to be executive head of a great department store.

Now, almost every man knows how to press a pair of pants if emergency arises, and the wife isn't handy. But a coat is a problem. So Haines, armed in the knowledge gleaned from his role, offers this set of directions:

"Wet a towel. Wring it out. Lay the coat on the ironing board, its collar over the narrow end, and press out the side panel. Reverse and do the same thing. Then the back.

"Then each sleeve separately, pressing in the groove.

"Then stuff the shoulders with a dish towel and pat them with the iron. Of course, the wet towel aforesaid is invariably between the fabric and the iron."

As to a hot flatiron he remarks—"heat it and every now and then wet the finger and touch it quickly. When you get a 'pop' it's at the right heat."

CHANGE TITLE OF COPLEY HIT

The first performance of Sam Jenney's breezy detective comedy at the Copley suggested to the management a change of title. Originally called "Monkey," from the nickname of the central character, a wiry and wizened-up little fellow who solves the murder about which the play concerns itself, it was suggested that "Apartment 33," the scene of the crime, would be more appropriate and significant. The rechristening occurred a day or two ago, and henceforth "Apartment 33" will be the name of the new production.

Midnight Show at Keith's on Holiday

At one minute past 12, Sunday night, RKO Keith's will have a special holiday midnight showing of its feature picture, "Ten Cents a Dance," in which Barbara Stanwyck is starred. Another feature of more than usual interest is the second of the series of golf lessons by Johnny Farrell, former United States open champion. This one is called "Duffer Swings."

Film Who's Who

Leila Hyams, in "Men Call It Love," at Loew's Orpheum, was born at New York city, the daughter of vaudeville headliner parents—John Hyams and Leila McIntyre. She was on the stage since childhood and began her picture career in 1926 in "Dancing Mothers." After appearing in pictures at various studios, she was signed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and first appeared for them in "Alias Jimmy Valentine." She has since played in a great number of features, the most recent of which were "Way For a Sailor," "Part Time Wife" and "A Gentleman's Fate."

—With GEORGE UNDERWOOD—

Miles Made a Name. Won Marathon, 1926. Dropped Out, 1927.

Was Called Quitter. Came Back in 1929. Lived Up to Name.

CHAPTER IX—"ON MARATHON TRAIL."

AS CHARLIE CHADWICK, the old Yale football star, once said in writing of a famous Blue player, "It is a great thing to have a name, but sometimes it is an awful thing to have to live up to that name." Back in 1926 a rosy-cheeked, smiling, 19-year-old lad from Cape Breton Island came down to Boston and made a great name for himself. He flung his feet in the face of a field of the world's greatest distancers in the annual Boston Marathon.

WHEN, accompanied by his fond Ma, he went to the starting line at Hopkinton, he was an unknown, a nonentity. When he tore the finishing tape on Exeter st. and fell into the arms of his proud Dad he found himself a celebrity. His name was on every tongue. It roared from banner lines in the newspapers. He was pointed out by admiring thousands. Johnny Miles was as much talked about, written about, as the President of the United States or the King of the great empire whose blood red banner he carried to victory in the world's greatest Marathon race.

"This youngster from Cape Breton," clarioned the experts, "humbled Stenroos, the Finn, Olympic Marathon champion, and ran the great Clarence De Mar into the ground. Johnny Miles is the greatest Marathoner in the world!"

Johnny Miles had a name.
It is a great thing to have a name,
Sometimes it is an awful thing to have to live up to that name.

THE SEASONS rolled around. Another cycle of months. Another Boston Marathon. The boy who came to the starting line an unknown the year before answered the call to post in 1927 a top-heavy favorite. Surely, reasoned the experts, the marvelous youngster who ran the legs off the great De Mar and Stenroos, smashing De Mar's record for the course, with another 12 months' seasoning and the experience gained in the previous race, will repeat his victory.

It is great to have a name. Sometimes it is an awful thing to have to live up to that name.

Miles dropped out of the race after a few miles, pleading the heat was too much for him.

"Quitter" mouthed some of the unthinking ones, who had been loudest in singing his praises. "He's yellow," bawled some of that loud-mouthed tribe, nine-tenths of whom have a white streak a foot wide running down their own backs.

"Quitter" and "yellow" are two terrible words. They are bandied about altogether too much.

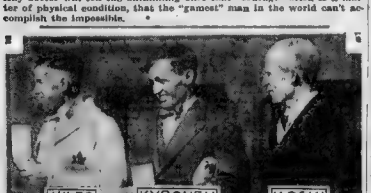
It is always safe to call a fellow yellow from a grandstand chair. It is almost as safe to hint he is a quitter in the columns of a newspaper.

If someone had called Johnny Miles yellow to his face, Johnny promptly would have socked him on the jaw. But what could the poor, game, stouthearted little Cape Breton Islander do to those who talked behind his back or attacked him with veiled innuendos in the newspapers?

There was nothing for Johnny to do but grin and bear it, bide his time and wait. It is great to have a name. Sometimes it is awful to live up to that name.

HOW WERE the unthinking ones to know that Miles overtrained for the 1927 race? That he ran 14 miles every afternoon over the hilly, snow-bound North Country and brought himself down too fine? Miles tipped the beam at the start of the 1927 race at the same poundage he scaled at the finish of the 1926 encounter. For the 1927 race he was underweight and with nothing to work on.

A Marathon machine has to be geared to perfection. Let one cog slip, or one screw work loose and away goes all chances of victory. Any doctor will tell the unthinking ones that "courage" often is a matter of physical condition, that the "gamest" man in the world can't accomplish the impossible.



THE CAPE Breton Islander could not start in the Boston Marathon of 1928. The Canadian Amateur Athletic Union forbade any candidate for the Canadian Olympic team from starting in any race in the United States previous to the Paris Olympics.

Another year rolled around and another Boston Marathon—the race of 1929. When the great field of distance runners, the pick of the world, lined up there across the road at Hopkinton there among the starters was Johnny Miles.

The same Johnny Miles, who, despite his great victory over Stenroos and De Mar in 1926, the unthinking ones dubbed "yellow" and "quitter," because he dropped out of the Boston Marathon of 1927.

WHEN THE great pack got straightened out after the first few miles in the Boston Marathon of 1929, the weaker ones had dropped back and the trail led up and into the Newton hills, where most of the Boston Marathons are won and lost, little-rosy-cheeked, smiling Johnny Miles was right up in the vanguard, battling for the lead.

Battling for the lead with Whitey Michelson. Just as Miles, Stenroos and De Mar had it out on the Newton hills in the race of 1926, so did Miles and Michelson bang-bang away at each other on the same steeps in 1929.

And just as the Cape Breton Islander's rugged stamina, stay [illegible] courage took him up and away from the great Stenroos and De Mar, so it enabled him to shake off and go away from Michelson.

A final duel with Michelson, one last "shake-o-f" sprint and inch by inch Miles crept away. Straight on the victory trail raced the boy from Cape Breton. Kyronen and Koski passed Michelson, too, but they couldn't catch the fast flowing Miles. Johnny breasted the worsted a winner once more in what rightly has been termed the world's greatest Marathon Derby.

Little Johnny Miles faces the starter again in the great Boston Marathon of 1931 next Monday. It is a great thing to have a name. It sometimes is an awful thing to have to live up to that name.

But whether Johnny Miles lives up to his name or not, no one this year will have the temerity to call him "quitter" or term him "yellow." Johnny Miles has been baptized by fire and proved to be of the stuff heroes are made of. A Marathoner cannot always win. Even a hero cannot always live up to his name.

LUTZE WINS BOUT WITH WAGNER

By MR. BOSTON

I have told the head waiter to set 'em up for the boys in the back room. Just a little celebration over Nick Lutze's victory over Jack Wagner in one of those razzling bouts at the Arena.

Paul Bowser had a big smile on his honest pan when Lutze pinned Wagner in two straight falls. Paul, like a lot of other birds, has been anxious to see Lutze come through big in a wrestling way. Nick is such a swell fellow and a first class rassler, too.

Mr. Boston

The breaks of the game have been against him in some of his Boston matches. They even lugged him off to the City Hospital one night with a concussion of the brain.

That was the night he battled Ed George for the first time. He scored a fall against Ed in their second meeting only to lose out later on.

I wish some of our careless boxers had been at the ringside as Lutze and Wagner punched it out. The boys apparently got tired of rassling and so stood in the center of the ring and traded wallops.

Lutze was formerly a pretty fair pro heavyweight boxer, and he packs a mean wallop in each hand. After he punched Wagner groggy, he stepped in close and tossed Jack with his famous reverse back fall.

McCoy Wins Right to Take on Sonnenberg

Bibber McCoy of Cambridge won the right to battle Gus Sonnenberg at the Arena on next Thursday night, when he scored over Don DeLonge, French heavyweight, in the other half of the double windup. Bibber took the first fall in 18 minutes and the second in 6 minutes 4 seconds.

McCoy and DeLonge furnished a rough battle. Bibber won his fall by a play with flying tackles. He secured both of his falls with this hold, if it can be termed a hold.

Bibber made his own rules as he went along. At times the crowd thought McCoy overstepped, but he apparently figured he would have to become rough to get the shot at Sonny.

Morelli Continues to Show Improvement

Al Morelli, Boston College athlete, is improving with each start. Almost looks as good as the dear old Braves. Al proved he is going somewhere in the wrestling world when he dropped Boris Demetroff with a flying tackle in 22m. 51s. Stanley Stasaik knew something when he stated that Morelli is the most promising of the younger crop of wrestlers.

Jake Patterson of Syracuse University upset Sailor Arnold in 15m. 54s. A body lift and slam did the trick.

Judge Otis Heads Cape Cod League

Hyannis, April 17—Judge Thomas Otis of this town was re-elected president of the Cape Cod Baseball League at the annual meeting here last night. Other officers are John H. Shepard of Chatham; Edward Hoxie, Wareham; John D. MacFarlane, Hyannis, vice-presidents; Everett Perry of Orleans, treasurer; Clifford L. Hubbard of Falmouth, secretary; Roger W. Tilson of Harwich, auditor.

Wareham, Falmouth, Barnstable, Harwich, Chatham and Orleans will have teams.

Falling Hyannis and Osterville Athletic Associations have merged as the Barnstable A. A. Alternate games will be played at Hyannis and Osterville. The new association has elected Congressman Charles L. Gifford, president; Emil W. Rodin of Hyannis, vice-president; Walter I. Fuller of Osterville, treasurer; Elno Mott, secretary

Green-Stanford May Play at Chicago

Hanover, N. H., April 17—Harry R. Hennage, supervisor of Dartmouth athletics, was confined to his home, consequently he is unable to say as to the site of the Dartmouth-Stanford football game was not made.

Hanaage would have left for Chicago and Cleveland, but his illness stayed his departure.

Soldiers Field in Chicago loomed as a certainty for the game, according to those close to the athletic office, as Dartmouth has already secured an option on the gridiron.

MAYOR CURLEY SINKING A PUTT

DOLAN MARTIN LONG MAYOR CURLEY

MISS MADISON WINS DASH

New York, April 17—Helene Madison, of Seattle, failed to break a record in the opening events of the women's national A. A. U. swimming championships, but she won the 100-yard free style race with yards to spare over her closest rival, Josephine McKim of the Los Angeles Athletic Club. The 17-year-old coast star did the century in the fast time of 1 03 2.

While failing to break her own record for the distance, Miss Madison still was considerably under the listed world mark of 1 08, held by Ethel Lackie. A teammate of Miss Madison, Dawn Gilson of the Washington Athletic Club, took third place in the feature event.

Eleanor Holm, of the Women's Swimming Association of New York, won the 300-yard medley event. Miss Holm, who has held the medley title for the last four years, finished far ahead of the field in 4 22 1, considerably over her record of 4 16

Georgia Coleman, of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, captured first honors in the low-board diving event. Katherine Rawls of Hollywood, Fla., was second and Ruth Fauntz of the Illinois Women's Athletic Club, third. In winning the low-board title, Miss Coleman displaced Jane Fauntz, last year's champion, who did not compete.

Cassedy Crew Wins Harvard Trial Race

The Cassedy crew defeated the Bacon crew of the Harvard varsity rowing squad in a trial race on the Charles river yesterday as Coach Charlie Whitesides sent his oarsmen through their daily practice session. The race was informal and was rowed over a distance of about a mile.

Armistead B. Root of Concord was at No. 7 in the Cassedy boat in place of Capt. John Halowell.

Carr Smith With Norfolk Ball Club

Outfielder Carr Smith, a member of the Williamsport club of the NYP league last season, is the second ex-Bill to be taken on by Manager Win Clark of Norfolk. Early in the spring Clark signed First Baseman Cy Anderson, a 1930 teammate of Smith's.

Curley Opens Public Course With Victory

Following his usual custom, Mayor James M. Curley not only opened the season officially at Franklin Park yesterday afternoon by driving the first ball down the fairway but he had the honor of winning the first match played at the "munie" this season.

Teamed with Edmund P. Dolan, city treasurer, Mayor Curley defeated Park Commissioner William P. Long and John J. Martin, 3 and 1, in a four ball match, and in his solo match with John J. Martin, the Mayor had an eight-stroke lead when the final putts were holed out

Not only was Mayor Curley the main factor in the four-ball match, but he also turned in the best medal score. He was off his game to the turn, using 51 blows to negotiate the outward nine, but he began to function in mid season form at the 10th and came home in 43 for a fine 94. Commissioner Long put together a pair of 49's for a 98, John J. Martin was 52-50-102, and Eddie Dolan 54-49-103

Mayor Curley had the best ball of the foursome on five holes, and his partner came through with a win at the short 11th. Commissioner Long carried the load for his side winning four holes, but he was not quite capable of holding the pace set by Mayor Curley during the incoming round

Time Trials Today for Harvard Runners

Curley-Dolan Team Off to Good Start

The Curley-Dolan team went out in front at the first hole when the Mayor aoared a 5 but Commissioner Long squared the match at the 2d hole and then came through with another win at the long 3d, which put his team 1 up. After they had all taken 4's at the short 4th, Mayor Curley and Commissioner Long halved the 5th but the Long-Martin combination went 2 up when the Commissioner connected with two great shots going to the tough 6th and won the hole with a 5.

Mayor Curley was forced to carry on alone, going to the 7th and 8th where he managed to get halves but Treasurer Dolan did his bit at the short 9th when he held off his opponents, with the Mayor out of the hole, having hooked his tee shot into the woods.

The Mayor began to hit his stride after the turn, for he was home with a drive and an iron at the 10th to win the hole with a 4 and when he slipped a peg at the 11th, Dolan came through with a 4 which was good for a win and the match was all even.

All Had Trouble at Pond Hole

They had all encountered trouble at the pond hole, three of them going overboard and wound up with 6's. Mayor Curley dropped a ball out for a win at the 13th and then he came through with a win at the dog leg 14th. After flubbing his chip to the 15th green, Mayor Curley ran down a 15-footer for a 4 and his team was dormie.

His Honor was short with his second at the 16th and then strong with his approach, his ball running into a trap at the back of the green, and after Eddie Dolan had threputted his way out of the hole, Martin dropped a 5 to keep the match going.

Going to the 17th, Mayor Curley pushed his drive badly into the rough and then pulled his second shot over the hill and his ball came to rest down by the trees. But, from a blind site, he played his best shot of the round, a high mashie niblic to within three feet of the pin and dropped his putt for a 4 and the match, 3 and 1. Flying out the by-e hole, Mayor Curley got a half and Martin a 5

Jack Sharkey, American heavyweight champion, and Primo Carnera will sign contracts in New York next Monday for a 15-round bout which will be staged at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn on June 10.

The way was opened for Sharkey and Carnera to sign legal contracts in New York when the Athletic Aid was reinstated by the New York athletic commission after having been under its ban for 11 months

Sharkey has already started training for the match at Jim Toland's gym. Jack is down to 202 pounds and is ready to start a strenuous training grind.

Carnera will be in Boston for a theatrical engagement at the Old Howard next week, according to Fred Doherty, high-powered press agent. Primo has not fought since he battled Jim Maloney at Miami, Fla

BRAVES REST AFTER BEATING ROBINS THRICE

NO CONTEST SCHEDULED FOR TODAY

By JOE CASHMAN

There's no baseball in Boston today due to one of many freaks in the 1931 schedule.

As a result, our league-leading Braves will work out here and the Brooklyn Robins will play an exhibition game at Hartford, Ct., in preparation for the fourth and final battle of their series at the Wigwam, tomorrow.

Rain never help a winning ball club and the Tribe doesn't relish this one a bit. The Robins, on the other hand, are quite happy over it, figuring that it will enable them to pull themselves together after dropping three decisions in a row and capture the final tilt.

The next time these two clubs experience a breathing spell, it may be the natives who will be piqued and the visitors who will be mad, and in the course of a season every club probably gains as much as it loses by these frequent days off.

Yet, there shouldn't be so many open dates as there are every season.

The Braves have no less than 20 this year. That's far too many, for every day there isn't a game, a few fans discover some way of spending their spare time which they enjoy better than sitting at the ball park and the clubs lose cash customers.

It is difficult to draw up a schedule satisfactory to every team, with Philadelphia and Pittsburgh unable to play Sunday ball, but by carding a few doubleheaders and shortening the season, several open dates could be avoided and all concerned would profit.

McKechnie Confident Braves Will Clean Up

Manager Bill McKechnie admitted today that he would much rather conclude the series with the Robins this p. m. instead of tomorrow, but he was confident the halt wouldn't hurt his charges any.

"I told you that we would beat Dazzy Vance, and we did," he chirped. "I also told you that we would beat Phelps, and we will when we face him tomorrow.

"Vacations don't help winning clubs, but this one won't hurt mine. We are on top and intend to stay there. You can rest assured that a little thing like an afternoon of leisure isn't going to knock us off."

The Tribe had much more trouble winning the third game from Vance, by a score of 7 to 4, than it did in grabbing off the first two verdicts, but that doesn't matter as long as they came through.

The enemy ace burled fine ball all the way and went into the seventh inning with a 4 to 3 lead.

The natives would not be denied, though.

Wilson's Homer Gives Tribe Victory

With two gone in the lucky frame, Spohrer clicked a single to right which sent Lucky scampering home with the tying run. This seemed to unsettle Vance and he walked Ed Brandt.

That didn't seem very fatal with Charlie Wilson, who up to then had only made one single this season, coming up, but the young third-backer upset the dope by cracking a home run into the rightfield stands and the Braves had won their third game in a row.

Big Earl Sheely accounted for all the other Tribal markers, his single in the second scoring Berger and his double in the fourth allowing Worthington and Clark to register.

Brandt went the distance on the hill for the Warriors and displayed a world of stuff, but his wildness enabled the Robins to remain in the running until Wilson's smash.

He walked two in the third and up stepped Babe Herman to hit the first home run of the season at the Wigwam.

After that, he was rarely in trouble except in the fifth when Picinich doubled and Frederick singled for the final Brooklyn tally.

Canzoneri to Train for Berg in Chicago

Berg will endeavor to come in at the lightweight limit, 135 pounds, although he has been fighting as a junior welterweight.

BOSTON MAN AT HELM

DICK DUNN

DICK DUNN, general manager of the Boston Garden will be at the helm of the Schmeling-Stribling match which will be staged in Cleveland in the good old summer time. President William F. Carey of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, has turned over the general direction of the match to Dunn. SYRACUSE CREW WORRIES COACH

Syracuse, N. Y., April 17 (AP)—Jim Ten Eyck is viewing with alarm the prospects for a winning Syracuse University crew this year.

Despite the fact that the upstate school finished second at Poughkeepsie last year and has freshmen eight first, the grand old man of rowing who will be 80 his next birthday, shakes his head when asked what the chances are for a winning crew.

"I never know what to expect even when I see the boys in their shell at the start of a race and wish them good luck," he said. "I have been in this business too long to plan more than a day ahead."

With only two men missing from last year's varsity and all of last year's winning freshmen to pick from, Ten Eyck has not been paying a great deal of attention to his varsity candidates as yet.

Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

For the second consecutive season, the weather was ideal for the opening of the annual W. G. A. team matches yesterday. Until a year ago, the weather man was generally very unkind to the fair sex golfers but as they refused to quit regardless of the elements he must have undergone a change of heart.

Within 10 days, the Boston and Metropolitan four ball leagues will be underway. The Boston four ballers will start on Tuesday next and the Mets are scheduled to break away from the post one week from Sunday.

John Winslow, one of the best known amateurs from the middle of the state, has joined the Commonwealth Country Club. Winslow was reputed as one of the best golfers ever developed in Worcester and he will be a member of the Commonwealth four ball team.

Incidentally, Charlie Crane, who has been one of the mainstays of the Commonwealth four ball team for years, is now a member of Brae Burn but he will continue to carry his old colors until he relinquishes his Commonwealth membership in July.

Although no announcement was made to the effect, it was apparent that Mayor James M. Curley was engaged in a special match against John J. Martin yesterday at Franklin Park, along with his four ball tussle with Edmund Dolan as his partner against Commissioner William P. Long and J. J. Martin. Hissoner was just eight strokes up on the former yachtsman from Marblehead when the match ended. And, as he and the city treasurer were on the winning end of the four ball match, it was a fine day for Mr. Mayor.

Miss Eleanor Allen, who is president of the Womens Golf Association of Massachusetts, will sail for Europe next week and will be lost to the Eastern District for the remainder of the season.

Many of the Franklin Park greens were water kiled. This is especially true of the 7th and 10th, which be out of commission for a month or six weeks. Otherwise, the "munie" is in fine condition and will be better after the heavy traffic which will turn out over the week-end holiday.

Teddy Gow, formerly located at the Weston Golf Club, will be the professional at the Rockport Country Club. Gow is one of the most popular New England pros and Rockport made a ten strike when he was selected to succeed Russell Hale, now at Commonwealth.

Arthur Johnson and Joe Bonfilio are again at Weston and everything is running in ship shape form.

LINDER HOPES TO WIN OLYMPIC TEAM BERTH

VETERAN IN B. A. A. RUN MONDAY

By BILL CONNELL

Carl Linder, a son of Finland, will be making his first step toward a berth on the 1932 U. S. Olympic team when he goes to the starting line of the B. A. A. Marathon on Monday.

A winner of the Boston A. A. Patriots' Day grind in 1919, and a place winner every year since, with the exception of 1930, Linder is making a Marathon comeback after a two-year layoff. His entry was received by Tom Kanaly at the B. A. A.

Linder was a member of two U. S. Olympic teams, the 1920 and 1924 groups. Past his 40th milestone, Linder wants to be in a third set of the classic games before he quits Marathoning.

Carl won in the B. A. A. race in 1919 and paddled home third in 1920 to earn a place in the Olympic lineup. He was fourth in 1921, slipped to seventh in 1922, grabbed a like place in 1923, but came back to finish fifth in 1924 to gain the Olympic rating.

Linder Just Missed 1928 Olympic Berth

He slackened his pace somewhat and took 12th position in '25, was out of the running in 1926, but showed he really had not slipped by taking fifth in '27. Then in 1928, Olympic year again, Carl made an heroic effort but drifted home sixth, just missing a place on the team. Still hoping for better fortune, Linder started in '29, but had to give everything to get 15th place.

"I did not train enough in 1929," says Carl, "and so I decided to start a long campaign, with the 1932 Olympics as my goal."

A long rest was his first training stunt. And for so tireless a runner as Linder resting was a stunt. But the layoff helped and when Carl started his easy workouts early in 1930 he had renewed vitality and stamina.

All through last summer, after his day's work as a pattern maker was done, Linder traveled to Pfeffman's Oval in Quincy. There he would methodically jog, mile after mile, some fast and some slow, steadily building up his legs for the Marathon effort.

That remarkable period of training told in Linder's condition, and now he is ready. His experience and condition will make him a real factor in Monday's race.

Linder Has Been Running Since 1916

Linder has been running Marathons longer than the majority of the distance men with the exception of DeMar. Born in Finland, Carl came to the U. S. when he was 17 years old. Fourteen years later, in 1916 Linder ran his B. A. A. Marathon, and he has been running them ever since. A good place Monday will encourage Carl to continue for another year, and perhaps at last race through to the Olympic Marathon victory, the highest of footrace honors.

There now are 196 entered for the race and before the list closes tomorrow more than 200 will be in the fold.

The men whose names were received today with Linder's are Mike Lynch of Washington, D. C., K. of C.; Joe Pearson, Monarch A. C., Toronto; Edwin White, Tappan Post, A. L.; James Shaw, Monarch A. C., Toronto, and Gordan Norman of Malden, 10th in the B. A. A. race last year.

GOOD GOLF

BY CHESTER HORTON

"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

I have discussed the back swing action in a manner meant to reveal for you its underlying simplicity, but have not discussed the stance or address position which would be required for complete success. Many of you find it difficult to hold the body erect as you address. The best position is to be as nearly erect as possible without being flabby. You dont lean back nor does erect mean that you sag about the middle of body. The shoulders are slightly stooped—arched is the exact term—and your hands should be fairly close to you, about on a line so the end of the shaft would touch your left knee if you lowered it. Place your feet so you stand comfortably. Too close together will cause you to lose balance; too wide will put too great a pull on your left leg. From such position, back-swing as directed and you will be able to keep everything together.

ZERAMBY TO MEET SUGGS AT SALEM

By RINGSIDE

Jake Zeramby, classy Lynn lightweight, will tackle Sonny Suggs of Newport in a 10-round bout at the Salem A. A. on next Monday night. This is the most important bout booked by Al Lacy for Zeramby since the latter started his comeback drive.

Zeramby has won four straight bouts. If he keeps winning he will be signed to tackle Andy Callahan of Lawrence, New England lightweight champion.

Zeramby has shown his old fighting flash and punching power in his recent bouts. Weighing around 135 pounds, Jake is stronger than ever.

Suggs recently furnished a surprise when he disposed of Newport Johnny at Salem. Sonny is a brother of the famous Chick Suggs and says he will bring Zeramby's winning streak to an abrupt halt.

Bat Silva says he will feature North Shore boxers in his preliminary card.

SHARKEY WILL SIGN PAPERS MONDAY

Attorneys representing the Illinois Garden have already notified Jimmy Johnston and Carnera they intend to try to halt Primo's meeting with Sharkey.

Johnston and Carnera have engaged Ludley Field Malone as counsel and will fight any move of the Garden in the courts.

Sharkey Is Sought for Chicago Bout

Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, will return from Chicago tomorrow. He went to the Windy City to discuss plans for Sharkey's appearance there in matches during the coming summer.

Chicago promoters are anxious to sign Sharkey for bouts with Tuffy Griffiths, Mickey Walker and Tommy Loughran. While in Chicago Buckley conferred with Jack Kearns, manager of Walker, and Jack O'Keefe, manager of Griffiths.

Sharkey has agreed to take on Carnera before tackling any other opponent, but in the event the Carnera match should be blocked it is likely that the American heavyweight champion will box in Chicago the latter part of June.

The Arena Club of Philadelphia, through Maurice Fishman, is also bidding for Sharkey's services. It desires Sharkey for a meeting with Loughran at the Sesqui-Centenial Stadium in June.

Londos Wins

Syracuse, N. Y., April 17—Jim Londos, claimant of the heavyweight wrestling championship, threw Paul Jones of Texas in 29 minutes here. A series of flying headlocks followed by a giant swing paved the way for Jones' defeat.

MYSTERIOUS WAYE

SYNOPSIS: Underlying John Waye's strange behavior at Charters' nursing home, whose evil purposes his protracted visit foiled, is the mystery of his past. For he was not always John Waye, as he revealed in the preceding installment. In America he had been John Dacre Waye Vanderleur St. Clair, scion of wealth and position. Disappointed when his wife, Alicia, left him for another, he had lavished his devotion on their daughter, Rosemary. But their happy companionship ends when she is stolen from him. Upon the written demand of her kidnapers he sends them the family diamond, "The Unsetting Sun," almost priceless and reputedly "unlucky." After turning over to them additional diamonds worth $1,000,000, he is directed to a deserted house, where he finds his daughter lying on the filthy floor.

CHAPTER 28.

"John Waye" Is Born

DIRTY, EMACIATED, combed, unwashed, untended, and clad in horrible second-hand clothing, originally made for a child much bigger than s'—there lay what at first I could not believe to be my daughter.

What she had gone through in those awful weeks, I can never to know; but the last of the things that my little Rosemary had suffered, during my nearly three days' solitary confinement, night and day, in that filthy room of that horrible empty house.

I have suffered a good deal in my time—but in no place I received-my sorrow's crown when I discovered that Rosemary did not know me, and that my little girl was not only a physical wreck, but was completely insane.

Do you wonder that I became almost insane myself, and that punishment and vengeance became an obsession, from that hour?

I took Rosemary to the house of the nearest doctor, and thence to that of probably the greatest neurologist and physician in the United States.

She Screamed

I feel certain that no human being could have done more for my little girl than he did, and he hardly left her side until she died. I did not leave her once. It was agonizing beyond words—for she had suffered active and actual cruelty from one of the gang called "Jimmy" . . . She screamed his name in a horror of fear—shrieked and screamed to her father to come and save her from him . . . !

Jimmy!

I have never ceased to be thankful that I refused to move from her bedside, for, just before she died, she recovered consciousness and sanity for a few minutes, just long enough to say, "I knew you'd come, Daddy," and to smile at me.

First I realized the large property that would fall to me, and, having turned it all into cash, deposited it at my bank.

Then also—without a set about the business of disappearing by means of widely-spread reports of my approaching exile. My hat, my overcoat and my suicide's letter of farewell were found in my motor car on the bank of the river that ran near my house.

The erstwhile John Waye, John Dacre Waye Vanderleur St. Clair, disappeared absolutely from human ken, and in the underworld of Chicago, unobtrusively appeared a somewhat mysterious recruit in the upper ranks of crookdom—a bearded, flash, moneyed rascal, one of whose aliases was John Waye.

Before long I was something of a figure in the underworld of Chicago, and a friend and protege of "Uncle" himself.

The chief of police at Chicago, in the early days I was in search of a kidnaped daughter, had told me that, sooner or later, "Uncle" was bound to know something—and probably everything—about the business, adding that it would be perfectly useless to approach Uncle direct.

Through the good offices of an excellent crook whom I had employed before I disappeared—and who, in the bearded ruffian that now sought him out, did not recognize his erstwhile employer—I steadily enlarged my circle of undesirable but desired acquaintances and sedulously explored this underworld.

Once established at Uncle's, I learned a great deal, and it was there, one night, that I heard a slightly intoxicated female bemoaning, in maudlin and rambling manner, the long absence of her partner in gang crime, at S——, where he and his pals were on to a fine, but delicate, thing in blackmail, combined with a kidnaping which meant a fat wad either by ransom or white slavery.

To S—— forthwith I went.

Can a diamond—or any other inanimate object—be "unlucky"?

I suppose it would be quite understandable, and possibly ex-

LISTENING POST

AN INFORMAL studio party (always enjoyable), lasting from 12 midnight until 1 a. m. is to be a part of the plan by which Linus Travers intends to inaugurate WAAB from the Buckminster studios, Monday night. It is designed to get the new unit off to a good start. Those who remain up to hear the "goings on" are assured of a rare radio treat. Theatrical stars 'n everything. Our "colyum" has been invited and will report proceedings.

* * *

IN WHAT people like to call the old days, theatrical producers rehearsed performers and aspiring stars with the attitude: "We shall see what we shall see." Today, with talkies and radio commanding attention, "We shall hear what we shall hear," is the position taken by moguls occupied in the business of public entertainment.

* * *

COURTESY is surprisingly apparent in a voice. It doesn't seem at all difficult to determine the manner of man that is speaking into a microphone. What a mistake to attempt winning good-will with a harsh, dominating delivery, when a bit of selection would accomplish the desired purpose.

MOST LISTENERS are willing to accept commercial promotion and react favorably, providing it is properly done. Which comes under the heading of psychology—or better than that, common sense, coupled with sincerity.

NAMES IS NAMES: Crane Wilbur, on WNAC last night at 6:00 when asked his preference of Boston theaters, naturally exclaimed "The Wilbur."

SOMETHING for nothing is still among the foremost characteristics of people. Statistics show that when as much as a pin is offered in return for a letter from a listener, the mails are heavy. Without some such proposition, response to any sort of program is found to be meagre.

* * *

Limp Form

Picking it up, I saw it was the sort of thing in which a wealthy man might carry bills of the larger denominations. It was empty, and I jumped to the conclusion that it had been emptied by the swift and silent runner as he ran.

What should I do with the thing? Throw it away? Keep it in case I read or heard something that might give me a clue

Suddenly, I saw, lying beneath the next lamppost, the huddled form of a man. Hurrying forward and kneeling by his side, I found that he was elderly, very well-dressed—and apparently dead.

Raising his head and shoulders from the ground, to see if it were possible to render first aid, I decided that he was dead. His heart had ceased to beat.

Lowering the body to the pavement again, I picked up the wallet from where I had laid it it down. Perhaps it might contain a name and address.

As kneeling beside the body, I searched the pocketbook. I was almost paralyzed by a tremendous blow which, falling upon my left shoulder close to the neck and sending me sprawling on my face, seemed to knock the breath from my body and thought from my brain. . . .

Experts Demand Relief on Earned Income Tax

To the Joint congressional Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, its own experts, after careful study, have finally urged that Congress grant tax relief on earned income.

Approaching the subject from a scientific point of view, these experts point out that "brain and brawn are entitled to as much consideration as capital."

Capital receives deduction from taxable income on account of depreciation. Proportionate relief should be extended to the individual because he is also subject to exhaustion of his earning power.

Furthermore, the individual with earned income generally bears expenses not borne by the individual with unearned income.

Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and Spain in their tax laws recognize the fairness of taxing more lightly incomes from wages, salaries and professional services than the income from a business or from investment.

In fact the present method of relief is so complicated that twenty per cent of all the individual returns are in error on the earned income computation.

Many of the injustices of those provisions of our present laws dealing with earned income arise from the fact that they were based on revenue requirements, and are consequently as unscientific as they are unfair.

The joint committee is urged by its experts not only to reduce the tax on earned incomes, but to simplify the method of computing this tax, and thereby eliminate some of the injustices of the present income tax law.

All that the Hearst newspapers have charged against the oppressive and unfair methods by which earned income in this country is now taxed is corroborated by the experts of the joint congressional committee appointed to study this subject.

The report of these experts has been filed in ample time for the joint committee to study and report to the first session of the new Congress a specific program by which taxes on earned income will be reduced and American taxpayers given the equitable consideration they would get if they lived in European countries.

Other civilized countries long ago abandoned the unfair practice of penalising by law the brain of the doctor, lawyer, clerk, preacher, teacher, author, actor and scientist.

Their brain is their only capital, yet as Professor Thomas S. Adams, Yale economist, points out, an American concern "selling oil, stocks, chewing gum, white spats, or any other form of property" under existing federal tax law, "is allowed important deductions which find no counterpart in the income tax return of the man of service."

It is high time for the United States to give "the man of service" the relief that only a reduction in the tax on earned incomes can afford.

This New Vitamin

Ulcers of the stomach, supposed to have killed Napoleon, very common in our existing life of today, are said not to start in the stomach, but in the brain. Emotion affects the mind and it in turn affects the stomach. Instead of saying "a healthy mind in a healthy body" it might be more accurate to say "a healthy body is the residence of a healthy mind."

News from Montreal tells of a new vitamin that will prevent softening of the brain. It should be supplied liberally and at public cost to those who think danger of war can be averted by sentimental pacifism, and that kind words can take the place of fighting airplanes.

He Never Did Grow Up

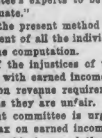
By WINIFRED BLACK

His Mother Doted on Him

POOR OLD fellow—there's always something wrong with him.

His back aches, or there's a pain in his head, or one of his teeth is troubling him, or the arches of his feet do not do their duty, or when all else fails, he has a cold and he thinks he is coming down with the "flu."

He's always coming down with the "flu" and, somehow, he never thinks to speak of it when he is coming up out of the "flu."



Winifred Black

Yet, he's old; he's worked pretty hard all his life and those he really loved are gone. The world seems to be a sort of lonely place for him, but other people are old and alone, too, and they don't grumble and mourn and complain about it.

Strange thing about the poor old fellow.

He started out with a good deal of promise.

Those who knew him when he was little say that he was a beauty as a baby, such a beauty that his sisters were always dressing him up as a bride and putting the window curtain on his head for a veil, just for the pleasure of seeing his red cheeks glowing like two ripe peaches through the lace.

That was when he was two or three years old.

When he was six or seven he was teacher's pet.

Teacher was a nice, kind, middle-aged person who was very fond of children, and she had never married and she made a great pet of rosy-cheeked, curly-haired, blue-eyed, little Bertie.

Bertie never had to stand in the corner with his face to the wall.

The boys all liked Bertie, even if he was a teacher's pet. And the girls—oh, they were all crazy about him. He was always bringing cookies and apples and doughnuts to school. And he brought slippery elm to chew. They didn't call it elm, they called it "slippery alum," for some weird reason unknown to the teachers of language —"as she is spoke."

But whatever they called it, Bertie always had a desk full of it.

And he had a pocket full of candy mottos, heart shaped, and made of peppermint and in red letters the mottoes said "I love you," and "Be my girl."

But his father died when he was quite young and his mother was broken-hearted. She used to keep Bertie out of school for "company" and take him for long walks in the fields and in the woods. And nothing was ever good enough for Bertie. She was sorry for him all the time. He was so trusting and so sweet-tempered she hated to think that he might have to meet cruelty and disappointment in life, so she wrapped him in cotton and gave him a velvet carpet for his journey, stubbed little feet to walk on.

I wonder if Bertie would be more of a man today if his devoted mother had allowed him to be more of a man when he was little?

Poor Bertie, he's always looking for comfort and for pity and for sympathy—and usually, somehow or other, he manages to get all these things, but he gets very little else.

And he gives—exactly nothing at all.

Poor old fellow, I'm sorry for him and I do hope his devoted mother does not know just exactly the sort of chap her wonderful boy has turned out to be, don't you?

Listen, World! :: Contempt

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"Nix on Discipline!"

LUCILLE LOOKS at me with contempt.

She looks at me with contempt because I work ten hours a day . . . because I stick at the same job year after year, even though I sometimes get mad at my boss and my boss sometimes gets mad at me.

Elsie Robinson

Lucille doesn't believe in sticking to things or standing things. She is a Bright Young Thing of twenty-three. She made a great record in college . . . was editor of the college paper and wrote all sorts of thrilling, radical stuff. Everyone said that Lucille had a Great Future before her. Lucille, herself, took it for granted.

While she was in college, Lucille collected the idea that if you Knew Enough Things and were Smart Enough you had that world by the tail. Just Knowing Things and Being Smart—that was the campus code. It was also the code of all the Bright Young Things outside the campus. Now get this straight —it was a real code. It wasn't based on flippancy or rebellion or young conceit. Lucille's generation really believe they have the dope on How to Live Life. They honestly think that Knowing Things and Being Smart are the makings of success. And there was no denying that Lucille Knew Things and was Plenty Smart.

So Lucille graduated and Became a Writer. To be sure, the writing wasn't much. She "did clubs" on one of our smaller papers, and for exactly three months it was a Big Bang. Then Lucille realized that if she Went On Like That She Would Ruin Her Creative Ability. It simply wasn't possible for a Creative Artist to keep regular office hours and do the same old things at the same old time, day after day. You couldn't express yourself under those conditions. You became a robot. Only slaves lived like that. And, besides, it wasn't necessary. You didn't have to endure that sort of thing unless you wanted to endure it. Smart people with spunk refused to be "part of the machine." They got out—and succeede . twice as fast.

So Lucille, being smart and having spunk, quit that job and hasn't taken any other since. That was two years ago. Now she is living with her folks. She doesn't think much of her folks. She says the home atmosphere is deadly, and she's going to get out as soon as she is independent. But, of course, she's a little slow in becoming independent. She has only sold two stories in two years. She got $35 for the best one. But Lucille says she doesn't care about money. She insists that money isn't the point with Creative Artists. They Must Live.

So, whenever Lucille feels like Living, which is about sixteen hours per day, she goes right out and does it. This she calls expressing Herself. She's sure that, when she gets around to it, it will make Wonderful Writing Material. In the meantime, it's a little hard on Dad, who has to pay the bills. But Dad doesn't count.

He's just another of those ten-hours-a-day workers, with slave complexes. And he probably wouldn't know how to live even if he got a chance.

This is why Lucille looks at me with contempt. This is why many of the Younger Generation look at the Older Generation with contempt. They are sure that it is possible to succeed without all this stiffling monotony and discipline "NIX ON DISCIPLINE!" is their slogan—and they mean it. And they point to us as Horrible Examples of Wasted Lives.

Well, maybe they're right. But I HAVE A HUNCH THAT MOST OF THEM ARE DUE FOR A BIG SURPRISE.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, April 17—Thoughts while strolling: Nobody has needlessly swum anything for some time. That purplish haze over Jersey at sundown. The molten silver of the Hudson. Side-wheelers chugging to Albany. The plinkety-planks of string orchestras. A haul of cinders when a train rushes by.

Riverside Drive is not the same without those statues in front of Amelia Bingham's. The two marble fronted mansions of Egyptian cigarette millionaires. Twilight smugglers on the stone wall skirting the Hudson. Training ship sailors strolling with pick-ups. Smothery giggles.

The whirling of lights at Palisades Park. Where Joseph Schenck got his start. The lonely roadside photographer. That medical center's thicket of spires and the old G. K. Billings estate. The locale of many Vina Delmar stories—Inwood. Ten-a-month garages.

Upper Broadway's glitter. Radios squawking from every window. Movies featuring try-out turns that will reach the Palace later if they stick. Oily haired sheiks i the butter and egg stores. Groceries decorated with squares of red-lettered prices. The debutantes are going to the Roosevelt Grill for tea dancing.

The Argonia sliced up with rows of small shops. The Old Colonial theater dark. Once vaudeville's high spot uptown. Daddy Browning's huge real estate sign shifting into three colors. The spurt of life around Columbus Circle. If it isn't John McGraw, it's his double.

The movie-of-yourself, photomaton and usherless quarter-in-the-slot theaters. Scarcely a building in the Broadway 40's that stood 25 years ago. What will it be like 25 years hence? And I hope I will be here to tell you. Do you mind?

* * *

P. G. Wodehouse recently dedicated a book to his little daughter, Leonora. The dedication runs: "To my dear daughter, without whose constant help and encouragement this book would have been finished in half the time."

* * *

Cafes fashioned like Pullman cars have never taken on although a half dozen have been tried out. But a new one is announced for Madison Ave. It will seat 76 and be just too perfectly Pierre for anything. The sort of place where one goes deliberately and then beefs it is not the menu but the principle.

* * *

A guild of confidence men in New York—now known as "Prominent People Racketeers." They specialize in tricking newly rich whose vanities are easily touched.

On West 53d st. last evening was a ladder over the sidewalk. It was interesting to watch almost everybody step into the gutter and walk around it. All except a rather hefty lady who aproached it with a gleam, grabbed hold and laid it on the sidewalk. And walked angrily on. Amid much handclapping. Fun in the city, no end.

For many years I have in a sort of secretive way wanted to meet some lady who bore the name of Topsy. I visualized such a creature as frantically hoydenish—the fluffy sort who would drink champagne at 3 in the afternoon and fairly bristle with sophistication. Today an artist called. With him was a prim lady he introduced as his secretary —Miss Topsy.

I rather expected the room suddenly to fill with plebeian revelery, contetti and perhaps horns blowing. Instead she proved a sad eyed lady with a complexion suggesting a smear of vanilla blanc mange who gave the dogs a timid pat and then asked where she might wash her hands.

Inspired doubtless by Miss Topsy's gravity when Verne Porter dropped in later talk turned to the bleakness of existence. It came to us in our lamentations that 2:30 in the afternoon was life's barreenest moment. And suddenly discovering it was just 2:30 we became so touched that we parted blinking back scalding tears.

The Marry-Go-Round - By Helen Rowland

The Most Popular Form of Bigamy

IN ONE day, a week or so ago, two beautiful screen stars and one famous prima donna were granted decrees of divorce. And that was only a fair day for the lawyers.

"An actress is really married, first of all, to her art, and there is no divorce from that," confessed Pola Negri.

Of course, being wedded to an art and to a man at the same time is the most deplorable and the most popular form of bigamy. There ought to be a divorce decree printed on the back of every marriage certificate granted to a movie star—or any other lady celebrity.

It is not that successful women are any harder or any easier to get along with than any other kind; and it is not that the men they marry are any better or any worse than other men.

* * *

It is just that marriage and an artistic career are the oil and water which won't mix. And the career, like the oil, always comes out on top.

* * *

The cruelest thing that a celebrated woman can do to a man is to marry him—and thereby rob him of all his hope of glory and all his burden of responsibility. Nothing so effectively dims the light of a man's ambition as to marry a woman who is already in the limelight.

When he marries a lady celebrity, a fairly nice man is so dazzled that he just goes around in circles and never gets anywhere. Either he becomes conceited and lazy, or he loses his identity and is resentful. Few men are big enough to rise above such a one-sided situation.

No woman can divide her heart between two men; but she will cheerfully try to divide her MIND, her time and her attention between a career and a man—and then wonder why they both suffer.

No man is satisfied with what is left of a woman's thoughts, pep and enthusiasm after she has been run through a wringer all day at the studio or the office or the theater. And when a woman has had an exciting, exhausting day and comes home full of plans and ideas, a husband clutters up her life.

* * *

It isn't that an actress doesn't love her husband—it is just that half the time she doesn't remember that he's THERE. And no he-man can laugh that off.

* * *

Most actresses can't tell you exactly why they divorced their husbands until they consult their lawyers. Then they discover that it was for desertion or non-support, or mental cruelty—any polite ground.

* * *

But the real reason was BIGAMY—the futile attempt to lead a double life and to combine art and marriage.

Capital Silhouettes

ALFONSO would do well to cheer up and think of King Charles II. He may yet go back at an increase in salary.

* * *

SOME OF the more astute observers think that the Republic of Spain will have a pretty hard row to travel, what with the candidates for congress, and office-seekers clamoring for fourth-class postmasterships, and national chairmen refusing to resign, and ward heelers selling delegates at $2 on the hoof, and the prohibitionists demanding a dry plank and the rest of the people demanding a wet one, and what's more, suppose she has a senate?

* * *

MR. W. S. GILBERT'S theory, as expounded in the "Mikado," doesn't go in Washington when sure 'nuff royalty visits town, and so everybody showed all the respect possible to Prince and Princess Takamatsu of Japan: It's getting so nowadays that the only place where royalty is really appreciated is in a democracy. Here are a couple of the "highly titled few."

If the King Comes Here

He Could Do Many Things Amusing, Useful

A FEW hours ago the King was on his way to England in a battleship, leaving Spain perhaps forever. The Queen was on her way to Paris, possibly to take the cure in the Rue de la Paix.

Across the border that helps the Pyreness to separate Spain from France, two human currents were moving, one north, one south.

"Grandees of Spain" were moving north, leaving a country not agreeable or safe for them, with the King gone.

Little men, republicans that had been driven out for their opinions, were coming south, back into Spain. They may be the "Grandees" later.

So far as known, the people of Spain wish the King well. That he has had the welfare of his people at heart no one doubts. That he was fundamentally democratic in character many Americans that have met him can testify.

Spain decided that a republic was better than a monarchy. And a republic it is to be.

The difficulty dates back ten years to the Spanish afford to beat rebels in Morocco. They encountered hard fighters in the Riffians. Ten thousand Spaniards lost their lives.

That fight which ended in victory, but in disaster, was forced upon the King by the pride of the army, "to regain prestige lost" in Spain's little war with us.

Nobody here felt that Spain lost any prestige. She did lose Cuba and the Philippines, and many Spaniards felt that the loss was really a gain for Spain.

The Spanish army insisted on glory, went after it, and the result is responsible, in part at least, for the King's abdication.

Born a King, having actually reigned for twenty-nine years, Alfonso XIII, not yet forty-five years old, will find life changed and monotonous.

It is suggested that he may visit us after a stay in England. If he comes he will be welcome. And he will learn that in republics, as in monarchies, there are special laws or special interpretations of law, for special people. Our Prohibition and failure to enforce it will convince him of that.

He will be instructed and amused by the humble adoration of ladies and gentlemen "socially prominent" and anxious for something to worship. The toadying instinct cannot be driven out in two or three generations.

The great Napoleon, it is believed, planned to come here after Waterloo. But the English got him and changed that plan. The imitation, Napoleon Third, did come to the United States, and went back to be Emperor.

The Spanish King could do many things amusing, useful, and profitable, if he chose, in the United States.

Presumably, being a wise young person, the King has put away outside of Spain as much money as he will need. He is not extravagant. A dozen polo ponies, fifteen or twenty suits of clothes a year, a modest income of two or three hundred thousand dollars, probably would take care of his wants.

But if he wants more, he can get it here. Mr. Aylesworth of the National Broadcasting Company would gladly guarantee him half a million dollars a year to talk about anything he chose from Cervantes to bullfighting, and from the Cid to Roland.

Banking and brokerage houses would be glad to have him associated with them on a very profitable basis.

Incidentally, Alfonso could disprove for himself the old story concerning his family that the Bourbons never forget anything, and never learn anything.

Alfonso XIII never forgot that he was King of Spain, and never forgot his dignity.

But he did learn many things, including the important fact that when your people want a republic it is wise to let them have it.

This does not imply that the King lacks courage, for he has abundance of it. More than one attempt has been made to assassinate him, and on those occasions no man saw his face change or any sign of fear.

We believe, here, that a republic is better than a monarchy, although some of us are careful to add that, of course, you mustn't let a republic go too far, or get the impression that men are more important than money.
